Cotton Sessions Seem Sure in Texas and Georgia

LONE STAR SOLONS TO APPROVE PLAN FAVORED BY LONG

Russell Stands Ready To Issue Call for Special Session When Texas Assembly Is Convened by Governor Sterling.

LONG IMPATIENT AT TEXAS' DELAY

South Carolina Governor Will Proceed Regardless of Texas Action, Announcement States.

Legislation to control if not entirely curb, production of cotton in Texas and Georgia in 1932 seemed almost certain Thursday night when 18 members of the Texas senate stated they favored an extra session in that state.
Earlier in the day J. E. McDonald, Texas commissioner of agriculture, had received from Governor Ross Sterling the promise that he would convene the legislature when 17 senators had pledged support to a cotton bill, and Governor Richard B. Russell has stated that Georgia's lawmakers would be called together for the same purpose the instant the Lone Star executive acted.

The campaign in Georgia to stimulate sentiment for an extra session, which will be brought to a close with a Tallmadge speech at Milledgeville today, struck its first snag in Texas county Thursday night when farmers voted against both a special session and the Long plan.

While Governor P. L. Long registered impatience at the delay in Texas, Governor Ibra C. Blackwood, in South Carolina, was indicating that he would go ahead and call a special session whether Texas does or not.
The situation in the other cotton-growing states remained practically unchanged as the commercial eyes of the world watched the Lone Star state.

McDonald's statement that Sterling had agreed to issue the call in Texas when 17 senators pledged support of the control bill followed an earlier statement by the commercial eyes of the world that he regarded it "fruitful" to convene the legislature under assured majority would support the proposed legislation.

Sterling Awaits Assurance.
"If I call the legislature down here, knowing they would not pass a law," he explained, "and they refused to pass one I would be hanging to the highest limb in the state. The session would be called to help the farmer, and if the senate refused to act it would be of little aid to him."

In another statement the Texas governor said he was advising farmers to direct their appeals to members of the legislature and added:
"I can only call them into session.
I cannot make them pass a law."

The governor's hesitancy drew fire from J. W. Hoopes, of Dallas, president of the Texas Bankers' Association.
"Every day the session is delayed means a loss to the farmer," Hoopes said. "If Governor Sterling plans to call a special session he should announce his purpose, assuming that legislation which might be enacted would be of benefit to the cotton farmer. The crop is beginning to move now and soon will be out of the farmers' hands.
The sooner we know definitely what is to happen the better off we will be."

Governor Long Impatient.
In New Orleans, Governor Long, scanning reports about the Texas delay, asserted:
"We will put the fires under Governor Sterling again in an effort to have the Texas lawmakers assemble.
The governor of Texas is being misled. He is a bad interpreter of the real wishes of his people."
Declaring he would not be deterred by Sterling's statements, Long added:
"We are going right ahead. I'm getting telegrams from Texas legislators."

Serious Concern Felt For Nautilus' Safety

OSLO, Norway, Sept. 3.—(AP)— Serious concern was felt here tonight for the safety of the Nautilus, Sir Hubert Wilkins' arctic submarine. No news of the ship has been received for four days.
Authorities instructed all amateur radio operators to try to establish communication with the submarine. All official wireless stations have been calling the Nautilus without result for several days.

The admiralty also considered the possibility of sending the sloop Fridolf Hansen, now at Harstad, county Nordland, to try to locate the Nautilus, but no decision was made tonight.

QUIMET WILL PLAY 19-YEAR-OLD YOUTH IN U. S. AMATEUR

BY ALAN GOULD.
(Associated Press Sports Editor.)
BEVERLY COUNTRY CLUB,
CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Francis Quimet, one of the old masters of golf at the age of 38, and Maurice J. Mc-Carthy Jr., of New York, a born battler of the links, rode the crest of superlative play into the semi-finals of the United States amateur championship today.

As a result of their two sweeping conquests in the 36-hole quarterfinals, the veteran Quimet will match his skillful experience tomorrow against the youthful challenge of 19-year-old Billy Howell, Virginia state champion, while McCarthy tackles the brilliant Chicago district champion, Alfred J. (Jack) Westland.

Sixth Time.
Improving apparently with age and as the tournament progresses, Quimet reached the semi-finals for the sixth time in the last nine years by trouncing the 21-year-old Kansas City bantawweight, Paul Jackson, 7 and 6.

McCarthy forged his way to the final round of the day, a par 71, in the morning and then surviving an afternoon slump to take the measure of California's first national champion, of Los Angeles, 6 and 5.

Howell, a slim, blond Virginian, who has lost eight pounds through the rigors of his first national tournament, won the right to play the great Quimet by overcoming Lester Bolstad, of St. Paul, former public links champion 3 and 2.

The young southerner was two down in the morning, after his worst round of the championship, but rallied to win 18 in the afternoon. Bolstad's game and stamina showed the effects of a sudden attack of indigestion, so severe that he was given an extra half hour's rest before renewing a match in the afternoon.

The hottest battle of the day was fought out to the last putt on the 36th green, where Westland finally beat off his 208-pound rival, Arthur (Ducky) Lutes, of Rochester, N. Y., to win by 1 up. It was a terrific struggle throughout between two fine match players.

At no time were they separated by more than two holes. The match was squared six times before Westland came through with a par five on the 572-yard home hole to settle the issue.

The surviving quartet is one of the most sharply contrasting set of semifinalists the ancient tournament has known in many a year. Quimet, who Norman Thomas Is Jailed For Aiding Strikers' Cause

BY ROBERT J. CAVAGNARO.
PATERSON, N. J., Sept. 3.—(AP)— Norman Thomas, socialist candidate for president of the United States in 1928, spent two hours in jail today while he, 45, awaited arraignment on a charge of unlawful assemblage.

Thomas was arrested when he attempted to champion, by picketing, the cause of 6,000 silk workers no-in the sixth week of a protracted strike. He said he thrust himself into the silk workers' fight at the request of the American Federation of Labor.
He and his 45 companions, including two clergymen and a labor college instructor, were freed late today in $15 bail each.

Thomas' appearance with a group of pickets at the hand mill was to test a ruling by Judge Forester W.
Freeman, of the first criminal district court, forbidding strikers from assembling in front of a mill not affected by the strike.

Beavers Gets Time To Decide Course; No Change in Chief Seen Until Jan. 1

Chief of Police James L. Beavers, who Thursday night asked for and obtained time to consider his voluntary retirement requested by the police committee of the city council, is shown here conferring with members of the committee in executive session at police headquarters. The chief is second from the left. On the left is Alderman Farris A. Mitchell, while on the right is Chairman Alvin Richards of the committee. Councilman W. M. Rogers and Alderman J. Charlie Murphy.

Probability that Chief of Police James L. Beavers will retain his office until January, when he will have served 43 years in the department, under an agreement to resign at that time, was seen Thursday night following a conference between Beavers and members of the police committee.

The committee is expected to have another conference with Beavers at some time during the next week or so, at which time the possibilities of such an agreement probably will be gone into. The committee Thursday night asked Beavers to retire in favor of a younger and more vigorous executive, and the chief asked for time in which to consider the request, which the committee granted.

ATLANTA IS HELD AS COUNTERFEITER

Complete "Layout" Is Found in Raid on Trin- ity Avenue.

A printing machine for striking counterfeit coins and engraving equipment for making spurious bills as high as $10 in denomination were captured by secret service operatives and city detectives Thursday afternoon in a raid at 215 Trinity avenue, Atlanta.

Arrested on the premises, a man giving his name as A. M. Allen later confessed to counterfeiting activities, according to Broadnax, Allen is held without bond for appearance before United States Commissioner E. S.
Griffith this morning.

An inventory of the counterfeiting apparatus, according to Broadnax, includes a printing machine for making quarters and half dollars; photographic negatives of $1, $5 and $10 bills; $200 worth of photographic imitations ready for engraving; photographic materials, chemicals and books and papers on engraving. Allen admitted he was preparing to run off the counterfeits, Broadnax stated.

Allen said that he was a scenery painter by trade, and that he had lived in Atlanta about ten months.
He told Broadnax that he had been out of work for some time.

Led by Broadnax, the raiding squad included Operatives Henry P. Tyson and A. D. Stevenson and City Detective W. D. McGee.

Night Radio Ban Asked In Waycross Petition

WAYCROSS, Ga., Sept. 3.—No radio will be permitted to be operated in Waycross between the hours of 10 p. m. and 6 a. m., should a petition presented to the city commission be granted.

A number of citizens have presented to the city commission a petition on the grounds that to have radio going after 10 o'clock at night and before 6 o'clock in the morning constitutes a nuisance for neighbors. The city commission received the petition as information and referred the matter to the police department.

Assault, Profanity Charged Dry Agents

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Sept. 3.—(AP)
L. O. Godwin, Glynn county chief of police, today caused the arrest of W. T. Spell, his son, Dan Spell, and Earl Lucas, local federal prohibition officers, on charges of assault and battery and using profane language in the presence of women.

Chief Godwin said he swore out the warrants for the three men after investigation in Brunswick showed that the officers had been in the presence of St. Simons island, was badly beaten by the officers during a fight on the island Saturday, during which the officers used profane language.

The prohibition officers were out of the city when the warrants were served, but were arrested upon their return and the trio posted bond for their appearance at the next session of city court.

Heavy Losses Mark Reopening of Boerse

BERLIN, Sept. 3.—(AP)—The German securities market, which has been closed since July 11, reopened today and ran into a maelstrom of selling orders which beat prices down approximately 25 per cent and brought a shrinkage of unestimated millions of marks in stock values.

So great was the avalanche of sales orders and so scanty the purchases that the government was forced to the exchange declared sales orders to be allotted on the basis of 10 per cent of individual offerings.

Because of this and of the policy of semi-secrecy surrounding the day's operations, the actual sales could only be estimated, but it was known that even 80 to 100 per cent restriction basis they were extraordinarily high.
Weakness in Berlin was reflected on other exchanges throughout Germany.
Commodities felt the pressure less than securities.

NAVAL REBELLION AIDS CHILEAN REDS

Opportunity Is Seized To Urge Establishment of Soviet Republic.

(Copyright, 1931, by The Associated Press.)
VALPARAISO, Chile, Sept. 3.—(AP)
The entire Chilean navy was in revolt tonight, and communist leaders were seizing the opportunity offered by the chaos existing in Santiago, Valparaiso and other centers to urge the establishment of a Chilean soviet republic.

The last of the naval forces which have remained loyal up to today joined the Coghino mutiny this afternoon.
All Chilean vessels steamed out of the Talcuano navy yard, and a cruiser and several destroyers left here for Coughino.

At the battle craft, the number of which was not ascertainable, sailed away from Talcuano the commanders of the shore batteries ordered them to fire upon the departing ships, but the artillerymen refused to comply with the order.

Communist agitators, many of whom V said to be not Chileans, tonight were urging the seizure of the government, the confiscation of foreign business institutions and corporations, the division of lands among the workers and the expulsion of foreigners.

No Wage Cuts.
As a counter-move to the agitation, the municipal government issued this afternoon a set of all public salaries including those of the army, navy and air corps for September, would not be reduced.

The government also announced it would begin shortly a public works program which would give employment to 25,000 people and pay approximately $625,000 a month in wages.
The government's announcement did not reveal from whence would come the funds for the public works program. The action, however, was construed to be an effort to dissuade unemployed Chileans and others whose jobs pay only about 25 to 35 cents a day from turning willing ears to the arguments of the agitators.

A bombing squadron of the air corps availed orders here to proceed to Coughino if it became necessary to bring the revolting navy to terms.

The government continued to express belief that the mutineers would surrender, but there was no indication from the rebels of what their plans might be since they were joined by the remainder of the fleet.

Communist leaders were attempting tonight to get spokesmen to Coughino to ask the support of the fleet for the establishment of a soviet republic.

Scores Believed Lost In Porto Rico Floods

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Sept. 3.
(AP)—Floods rising from heavy rainfall said to have been due to the cyclonic storm which has been hovering over the Atlantic in this region took many lives and destroyed a large amount of property at Ponce today.

No accurate estimate of the number of people drowned could be made tonight, although the newspaper La Democracia placed the number at 200.

The flood came suddenly early this morning, following a downpour during the night, sweeping houses and huts along the river banks toward the Caribbean sea, where it is believed many persons were carried.

AUSTRIA, GERMANY VOTE TO ABANDON CUSTOMS UNION

BY P. I. LIPSEY JR.
GENEVA, Sept. 3.—(AP)—The Austro-German customs union project, one of Europe's most vexing political problems, was formally abandoned today at the meeting of the European commission. Immediately afterward the commission was called upon to banish another menace to world peace by improving relations between soviet Russia and capitalist nations.

Both Dr. Julius Curtius and Dr.
Johann Schober, German and Austrian foreign ministers, announced to the representatives of 24 nations participating in the meeting that their governments no longer would pursue the customs union project.

The call to face the Russian problem came from Maxim Litvinoff, soviet commissioner for foreign affairs, who avowed that unfriendly feelings between his country and the capitalistic powers were the outstanding cause of fear and distrust throughout the world. Fear and distrust, he said, are universal recognized as the fundamental reasons for the world's economic disorders.

Responding to the Germanic states of their plan for intimate commercial union was warmly received by spokesmen for France and Czechoslovakia, the two powers most alarmed by the project, which they declared, would pave the way for Austro-German political union.

Statesmen Congratulated.
Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister, and Viscount Cecil, Britain's spokesman, joined the other statesmen in congratulating Dr. Curtius and Schober and in predicting the success of the political and economic union of the two nations.

This formal abandonment of the suggested customs union was announced on the eve of a verdict from The Hague court which was asked to give an opinion on its legality.

The practical result of the renunciation will be that France—relieved of her fears—will grant the needed financial assistance to Australia, now virtually prostrate.

Congratulations over the expected improvement in Franco-German relations had not gone far before M.
Litvinoff summoned the commission to consider the serious antagonisms now existing between Russia and other nations. These antagonisms, he declared, constitute the greatest threat to world peace.

His strongest indictment was directed against what he described as economic warfare waged against Russia by non-soviet states. He complained of treaties already concluded, and of plans for pending agreements, which provide for preferential tariff rates for Danubian wheat moving into

Stimson Voices Optimism Over European Situation

BY ROBERT ST. JOHN.
NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Optimism over the political and economic situation abroad, and hope for "a lasting structure of peace" were expressed today by Secretary of State Henry L.
Stimson upon his return from a two-month tour in Europe.

He pictured Europe paying the way for peace, prosperity and political good will.

"There is now good reason to believe that European statesmen, taking advantage of the respite granted by Mr. Hoover's moratorium, are considering the recommendations of the London conference, are beginning gradually to lay the foundations of political goodwill, upon which a lasting structure of peace and economic prosperity can finally be rested," Secretary Stimson declared.

He found other causes for optimism in the recent plebiscite in Prussia, the German banking situation, and "even more encouraging," the meetings that are taking place between ministers of European countries.

He said he thought Germany had received "a new spirit of courage and confidence."

The secretary, ranking member of the cabinet, left the breakfast table

HUGE BOND ISSUE OVERSUBSCRIBED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—(AP)—An oversubscribed bond issue today relieved the government of immediate financial worry but left administration officials still seeking a plan to bring disbursement nearer the level of the treasury's income.

Another big issue of government securities—bonds or treasury certificates—to meet obligations falling due in December was regarded in informed circles as a distinct possibility.

Meanwhile, the administration's study of the fiscal situation continued.
It is aimed at the elimination of all unnecessary disbursements and from it will come ultimately a decision by President Hoover on whether an increase in taxes is to be recommended to congress.

In announcing that the $300,000, 000 three per cent bond issue, offered on Monday, had been oversubscribed in three days, the treasury today said the books would be kept open until the close of the week, so that mail subscriptions from distant points might be included when the issue is prorated among subscribers.

Officials do not expect the response will equal that for the $500,000,000 issue of last June which brought in subscriptions totaling $6,400,000,000.

State Calls for Bids On W. & A. Rentals

Governor Richard B. Russell Thursday issued a call for bids on the discounted rentals of the Western & Atlantic Railroad property, the sale of which was authorized by the recent session of the legislature.

The rentals of the railroad for five years, which total $2,700,000 or $45,- 000 a month, will be sold to the highest bidder, Governor Russell announced. The bids are to be received in the governor's office up until noon on September 25.

In his announcement Governor Russell said he was reserving the right to reject any of the bids and to call for new proposals either verbally or in writing.

on the Leviathan early this morning when he heard that more than 60 reporters, photographers and news reemen had boarded the liner at Quarantine and were searching the vessel for him.

The reporters were ushered in the ship's library and in a moment Mr.
Stimson appeared, serious of mien and flanked by two secretaries. He carried a cane and an umbrella lashed together and wore his usual dark morning clothes.

Mr. Stimson looked in better health than when he sailed for Europe on June 28.

Without waiting for the first question of the reporters, the secretary began to talk with ministers of foreign affairs informally, feeling that it would be more helpful—just as it is in business where one talks directly with a person and comes to decide important questions, through correspondence.

Then the questions began.
How about the World Court?
The secretary said he had enjoyed

POLICE LAUNCH CITY-WIDE HUNT FOR MURDERER

Detectives Are Seeking

C. Wheeler Mangum, 48 years old, co-owner of the Model Laundry, a son of former Sheriff C. Wheeler Mangum and one of the city's best known busilaundry offices at Houston street and Parkway drive shortly before 7 o'clock Thursday night. A negro reported to have entered the building a few min-and who was seen fleeing immediately thereafter, is believed to have been the slayer. No pistol was found in the building.

Police expressed the belief that Mr.
Mangum was killed by the negro, who upon he surprised in the act of robbing the company's office. Special squads of uniformed policemen and detectives immediately began scouring the city for the negro, who is described as being about 30 years old, of slight build and weighing not more than 130 pounds. No trace of him

Judge H. A. Etheridge of the munici-

Mangum to the laundry, from where he left for home in his own car a they saw the negro, believed to be the slayer, flee from the building. They are Fannie Jefferson and Garfield

PRINT CLOTH EXPERTS SEE BUSINESS REVIVAL

Increased Activity Is Predicted for Fall by George A. Sloan.

GREENVILLE, S. C., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Encouraging views upon the prospects for a revival of business activity this fall and winter in the print cloth division of the textile industry were reported by George A. Sloan, president of the Cotton Textile Institute, Inc., in a statement issued today after he had presided at a meeting of print cloth executives here.

His statement said "many factors were pointed to as rendering the coming fall and winter as particularly opportune for a revival of business activity in this important branch of the cotton manufacturing industry." Cotton mills were said to be carrying into the new cotton year the smallest stocks of raw material since 1925, while an increased demand for cotton goods was reported. Mr. Sloan's statement said it was believed that demand would be accentuated by the "phenomenally low prices" for goods, reflecting the present cotton price level.

Despite unfavorable business conditions, the statement said, sales of print cloths in the first half of 1931 were 33 per cent greater than in the same period of the preceding year. "Cotton manufacturing employs more people than any other manufacturing industry in the country," Mr. Sloan's statement said. "Since the print cloth section is its largest branch, increased demand would tend to alleviate the employment situation in many mill centers and accelerate the consumption of raw cotton. The public benefits are obvious."

PARLEY WILL AWAIT ARRIVAL OF GANDHI

Federal Structures Group Delays Conferences Until September 15.

LONDON, Sept. 3.—(P)—The round-table conference, which the British government hopes will arrive at some sort of federated status for India satisfactory to all parties, is going to wait for Mahatma Gandhi.

Although most of the delegates already are in London, it was understood today the meeting of the federal structures committee, originally set for Saturday, is being postponed until about September 15. Gandhi will arrive overland from Marseilles September 12.

The meeting of the federal structures committee is the first event of the conference program. It is expected to last only a few days and to evolve some plan or basis for discussion of India's projected federated status.

Three bare cells have been made ready for Gandhi at Kingsley Hall, an East End settlement house presided over by Miss Muriel Lester. He will live there while in London with only 7 shillings ($1.70) a week for clothes and spending money.

Sailing Brothers, Mother Re-United After 15 Years

SEATTLE, Sept. 3.—(P)—Five brothers, sailormen all, met in Seattle with their mother this week, the first time in 15 years their vessels have been in port together.

"It was wonderful to have my boys home again," said Mrs. Marie Gaidick, the mother. "It was just like when they were youngsters together."

Two of the boys came home as masters of liners, Joseph Gaidick, who carries over the oceans the name of his father, one of the west's famous skippers of clipper ship days, is captain of the Panaman. Fred is captain of the Willkeno.

BANKERS WILL RENEW $20,000,000 CUBAN LOAN

HAVANA, Sept. 3.—(P)—A $20,000,000 loan by the Chase National bank to Cuba has been renewed for 60 days, it was announced today. It is secured by a $40,000,000 issue of public works 5 1/2 per cent bonds due in 1945 and held by the Cuban treasury.

SOVIET'S RELATIONS CALLED EVIL FACTOR

GENEVA, Sept. 3.—(P)—Maxim Litvinoff, representing Soviet Russia at the meeting of the European commission, today characterized the unsatisfactory relations between Russia and the rest of Europe as "the most disturbing factor in international affairs."

He denounced proposed preferential tariff rates on grain as an economic offensive directed against the Soviet union and asserted that a move for a preferential treatment for Danubian wheat was a relief measure entirely at Russia's expense.

He protested sharply that his recently proposed plan for an economic pact of non-aggression had been "kicked about like a football" from committee to committee without getting any closer to action.

Charges of "dumping" should be covered in such a pact, he asserted, declaring that "accusations of dumping are frequently made without foundation, and not only against the Soviet union." Such accusations, he said, are a form of economic warfare.

Can you make a delicious uncooked icing

Uncooked icings are creamy, delicious and much easier to make and to apply than cooked icings. The basis for the recipe for uncooked icing given below is DIXIE CRYSTALS Powdered Sugar. Powdered very fine and smooth, this delicate sugar makes a perfect icing. It is especially adapted to the making of cakes and icings. Ask your grocer for DIXIE CRYSTALS—"The Sweetest Sugar Ever Sold."

GRAND JURY TO GET SHIP SHOOTING CASE

Witnesses Refute Claim of Mate He Killed Seaman in Self-Defense.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP)—The federal government has decided to present to the grand jury its case against Leonard C. Adams, chief mate of the American freighter Sundance, now held on a homicide charge for shooting to death Seaman Wooker in the harbor at Ghent, Belgium. Adams has contended the shooting was in self-defense. Seamen of the Sundance, questioned when the craft touched at Charleston, S. C., and Savannah, Ga., contradicted Adams' story, saying the men had held a grudge against each other for some time. Adams is at the federal house of detention here. Thomas J. Todaro left New York yesterday for Savannah and Charleston to obtain affidavits and transcripts of testimony, and to subpoena witnesses. Adams, when taken into custody, said that Wooker had struck him twice and that he was "in mortal terror when the shots were fired solely in self-defense." The decision to place the matter before the grand jury was made after United States Attorney George Z. Medall and Thomas Edward Dewey, his chief assistant, had been informed that Adams' story "did not stand up" under the testimony of the men who served with him and Wooker on the Sundance.

CONVICT GUARD GUILTY OF PRISONER ASSAULT

LAFAYETTE, Ga., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Already under sentence for slaying Hoke Cantrell, prisoner, A. B. Cooper, former convict guard, today was convicted of assault and battery on him and sentenced to an additional 12 months on the chain gang and six months' probation. Claude Putnam, another guard, awaits trial on a charge of murder, the prosecution claiming that he gave his gun to Cooper to shoot Cantrell. Sam Aiken, also a guard, was acquitted Tuesday night in a case similar to that of Putnam. The defense contended it was required that a guard give his weapon to another when he prepared to go among prisoners. Cooper is under sentence of two to three years for the killing. R. M. Black, a co-defendant in the assault case, was sentenced to serve four months with an option of paying a $35 fine. Another guard, Gordon Brown, was acquitted.

COLLEGE CENTENNIAL SPEAKERS ANNOUNCED

LAGRANGE, Ga., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Committees making arrangements for the LaGrange College centennial celebration announced today that Bishop Warren A. Candler, Atlanta; Bishop John M. Moore, Atlanta; and Dr. Snider, president of Wofford College, Spartanburg, S. C., had accepted places on the program to be carried out October 9. The committee charged with arranging for speakers was composed of W. E. Thompson, president of LaGrange College; Hutton Lovejoy, Cason J. Callaway and Samuel Candler Dobbs, Atlanta. Alumnae and their sons and daughters from all over the state will participate in the one-day event. The program for the day includes addresses and the academic procession in the morning; a luncheon by the men's organizations of the city at noon; a pageant in the afternoon depicting the 100 years of LaGrange history, and a banquet in the evening at which the Rev. Samuel Candler Dobbs, president of the state alumnae group, will be official hostess. The pageant was written by Miss Fell Benson, college librarian.

MACON INCINERATOR CO. IS SUED BY ATTORNEY

WILMINGTON, Del., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Six summonses have been filed in superior court here today against the Nye Odorless Incinerator Corporation, of Macon, Ga., by Arthur G. Logan, of Wilmington, an attorney, for $20,000, which he said represented fees for services rendered by a group of lawyers, engineers and sales representatives. Those named as complainants were Ralph W. Lawton, Los Angeles, former representative of the concern on the west coast; Robert N. Olin, Akron, Ohio, sales representative; Martin & Farley, Los Angeles, a law firm; Bonnie & Costa, consulting engineers of Philadelphia; Frank M. Moerk, Philadelphia, consulting engineer; Simpson, Thatcher & Bartlett, former general counsel for the company, of New York. A. C. Felton Jr., of Macon, recently won a suit in superior court here in which the Nye concern was complainant.

POSTAL RECEIPTS RISE FOR AUGUST IN MACON

MACON, Ga., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Postal receipts in August showed an increase of $9,796.63 over the same month of last year, running the total for the first eight months of the year to $245,810.69, it was announced Thursday by Postmaster Fox D. Stee. Receipts for the entire eight months of the year showed an increase of $2,242.42 over the receipts for the same period of last year. Mr. Stephens said. August receipts were $20,063.16. Receipts for August, 1930, were $20,266.53. For the first eight months of last year—January through August—receipts totaled $243,568.27. Mr. Stephens said the August increase was due largely to the fall catalog influx.

First Bale on Display.
WEST POINT, Ga., Sept. 3.—Wrapped in attractive cotton bagging woven at Shawmut mill the first new bale of cotton to reach the local market is now on display in the lobby of the Citizens' bank. H. H. Greene, cotton buyer for the West Point Manufacturing Company, paid 10 cents per pound for this bale, the bagging being furnished by W. H. Huff of the West Point Utilization Company. A placard on the bale announces it was raised by Prince Morgan on the farm of Zachary brothers.

PRESBYTERIAN SYNOD TO MEET IN WAYCROSS

Waycross, Ga., Sept. 3.—The Presbyterian synod of Georgia will hold its annual meeting in Waycross October 13, 14 and 15, with the First Presbyterian church of this city as host. The pastor and one elder from each Presbyterian church in the state are expected to attend. The first session will be called to order by Rev. L. R. Scott, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Valdosta, moderator, after which the new moderator will be elected. Dr. A. L. Patterson, of Savannah, is slated clerk of the synod. The Rev. Louis C. LaBette, pastor of the host church, is chairman of the committee on arrangements.

ATHENIANS INJURED AS AUTO OVERTURNS

HARTWELL, Ga., Sept. 3.—Mr. and Mrs. Lee Morris, of Athens, Ga., were painfully cut and bruised this morning when their car overturned on slippery roads near the Smith McGee bridge at the Savannah river. The negro chauffeur, who was driving the car en route to New York, suffered a broken arm and body badly cut. Mr. Morris is a prominent merchant in Athens.

the Flavor has won more women to Merita than to any other brand of bread in the South

Every day—a million say: 'It's Good!'

THAT'S a strong testimonial. There can be no hocus-pocus about it when Southern women so definitely prefer one bread above all others.

Only quality can explain such a preference. Without extravagant claims Merita has become the South's favorite bread, maintaining its leadership year after year.

If you could know the scientific exactness with which Merita ingredients are bought, the long years of skill with which they are mixed and baked . . . you would recognize instantly why Merita Bread is better bread.

But you don't need to go into all that. Taste the bread itself. Plain, as toast, in sandwiches, any way you please. And the flavor will tell you better than anything else why every day a million say it's good.

BIBB YOUTHS INDICTED FOR ROBBERY, ASSAULT

Trial of Hatcher and Haden Set for Special Session September 28.

MACON, Ga., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Ross Hatcher Jr. and Charles R. Haden, Macon youths, were indicted today by a special Bibb county grand jury for abducting and attacking an 18-year-old girl and for robbery.

Following their indictment it became known that A. O. B. Sparks and Scott Russell had been appointed by Judge Mathews, of Bibb superior court, as attorneys for the defendants because they were unable to employ counsel. The youths are scheduled to go on trial September 28, on the abduction and attack charges.

The robbery charge, contained in a separate indictment, alleges that Hatcher and Haden held up W. M. Weaver Jr. and his young woman stenographer as they were returning home after working late at the office, less than a half hour before the youths were charged with having attacked the girl.

The victim of the attack was the companion of J. H. Sprattling Jr., at the time of the alleged abduction. Sprattling and Dr. J. Emory Clay, physician for the girl, were said to have appeared before the grand jury. Luther J. Stevens, Bibb county deputy sheriff, also was said to have told the grand jury of alleged confessions by the youths.

EFFINGHAM ORDINARY SUCCEUMBS IN OFFICE

SPRINGFIELD, Ga., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Colonel Claude F. Berry, 69, died in his office in the courthouse at 3:30 this afternoon. He was ordinary of Effingham county, which position he had held for the last seven years. He served the county as clerk of the superior court for 22 years.

He served for a number of years as captain of the Effingham Hussars and upon the inauguration of Governor Joseph M. Brown was commissioned colonel on the governor's staff.

Colonel Berry, upon the incorporation of the city of Springfield, was by act of the legislature one of the original aldermen. He was a director of the Exchange Bank of Springfield. He was for a number of years an active member of the Methodist church.

He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Berry. In early life he was married to Miss Ida Quanton, of Savannah. He is survived by one daughter, Miss Lucile Berry.

The funeral will be held from the Springfield Methodist church at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon, conducted by Rev. T. I. Nease, assisted by Rev. F. J. Jordan and Dr. T. W. Shealy.

For twenty-three long years Sunshine Bakers have been blending a rare, velvety cream and imprisoning it between two rich, artfully designed chocolate cookies. Hostesses everywhere know this tempting combination as Sunshine Hydrox. It never fails to delight friends and family at teas and parties and with desserts, for it is the most popular English-style biscuit in America.

It is flattered by constant imitation of course... So remember, at your grocer's, only Sunshine is Hydrox.

Thomasville Meeting Is Against Long Plan

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Sept. 3.—Farmers and businessmen gathered Wednesday in Thomasville to discuss the situation concerning cotton. There was a crowd that about filled the county courthouse and they remained in session most of the afternoon. More than a dozen speeches were made in regard to the crisis now confronting cotton growers.

A resolution favoring an extra session of the Georgia legislature to deal with the subject was voted down, as was a motion to indorse the Long plan for limitation by law of cotton planting. The consensus of opinion seemed favorable to getting 80 per cent advances on the present crop and holding for a higher market in the future.

TALMADGE TO SPEAK IN BALDWIN FRIDAY

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Sept. 3.—Eugene Talmadge, commissioner of agriculture, will speak at the Baldwin county courthouse on Friday at 3 o'clock and has invited all persons interested in a discussion to save the cotton crop to be present.

Oscar Wall, representative of Putnam county, will also speak. Mr. Wall led the farm bloc in the house of representatives when the department of agriculture was under fire and an effort was being made to cut the appropriation.

Mr. Talmadge describes the present condition as the greatest crisis the south has known since the Civil War. He has been on a speaking tour of the state discussing with farmers ways and means of saving the present cotton crop.

The meeting Friday has been called by the commissioner and he will be the principal speaker. Letters have been mailed from Atlanta to the farmers inviting them to attend.

ROCKMART MEETING VOTES LONG PLAN
ROCKMART, Ga., Sept. 3.—Commissioner of Agriculture Eugene Talmadge addressed a thousand or more farmers and businessmen here at noon today. He explained the Long cotton recess plan and it was approved unanimously by the men present, all favoring the governor's call for an extraordinary session of the general assembly at this time.

YOUTH CONFERENCE WILL OPEN SATURDAY

MONROE, Ga., Sept. 3.—The young people's conference of the Gainesville district, Methodist Episcopal church, south, will convene at the Monroe First Methodist church in a two-day session Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. The conference will embrace five congregations on Saturday and two on Sunday.

Approximately 300 delegates are expected to attend, with several leading clergymen among them. Judge John D. Humphreys, of Atlanta; Rev. H. C. Enory, presiding elder of the Gainesville district, and Rev. Nath Thompson, of Oxford, Ga.

The theme of the conference is "The Efficient Christian," the program for which was outlined by Revs. C. M. Haynes, J. B. Smith and Zach Hayes.

FREEDOM IS SOUGHT FOR YOUTHFUL LIFER
COLUMBUS, Ga., Sept. 3.—(AP)—R. Terry, attorney for Albert Nix, serving a life sentence for murder, has posted a notice at the courthouse here that an application for pardon or parole will be filed before the state prison commission at its next session in October.

The Columbus Ledger said the filing of the notice recalled a sensational murder case in which Bartow Nix, uncle of Albert Nix, was convicted and hanged in the county jail here and Albert, then about 16 years of age, was used as a state witness and given a life term. This was in 1928.

MONTEAL WELCOMES MISSISSIPPI PARTY

MONTEAL, Que., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Led by the state lieutenant governor-elect, Dennis Murphy, and traveling in a gaily decorated special train, a party of 100 residents of Mississippi reached Montreal today on a tour of eastern Canada. The party was given a civic welcome and taken for a sight-seeing trip before the journey to Ottawa.

FARMER IS ARRESTED FOR DEATH OF TENANT

Bacon County Man Claims Shooting Followed Attack With Knife.

ALMA, Ga., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Sheriff's officers here today said Dr. R. C. Loyd, one of Bacon county's leading farmers, was in county jail at Douglas, Ga., following the fatal shooting of Ed Fowler, one of Dr. Loyd's tenants.

Officers said Dr. Loyd told them of going to Fowler's home yesterday for a load of tobacco to take to market on Douglas and an alleged attempt on the part of the tenant to attack him with a knife. The prisoner said the tenant knocked him down and as he was getting up Fowler was advancing on him with a knife, whereupon, Loyd told the officers, he fired four times. Fowler died instantly.

TOBACCO POISONING FATAL TO GEORGIAN

RAINBIDGE, Ga., Sept. 3.—Ira Murray, 56, of Faceville, died last night after swallowing a full glass of poisoning used in treating tobacco plants. He was carried to a local hospital but died without giving any reason for his act. Despondency over his physical condition was believed the cause. He leaves a wife and five children.

State Deaths And Funerals

MISS DRUSILLA NALLEY.
VILLA RICA, Ga., Sept. 3.—Funeral services will be held Friday for Miss Drusilla Nalley at her home near here. The services will be held at 2 o'clock with the Rev. Harris and Burnett officiating. Interment in New Hope church cemetery.

HAMPTON, Ga., Sept. 3.—J. O. Andrews, 36, died Wednesday night at his home near Hampton after a short illness. He is survived by two brothers and one sister, all of Hampton. Funeral services will be held Friday morning at Liberty Hill church near Hampton. Interment in the churchyard.

JOHN H. DASHER.
VALDOSTA, Ga., Sept. 3.—Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon at Oak Creek cemetery for John H. Dasher, 63, whose death occurred Wednesday at his home in the Benita section.

The services were conducted by the Rev. O. P. Spiegel, minister of the First Christian church, of which Mr. Dasher was a member.

Mr. Dasher is survived by his widow and four daughters, Mrs. Pearl Pope and Miss Caroline Dasher, of Benita; Mrs. Lilla Mae Sterling and Mrs. Virginia Smith, of Jacksonville; three sisters, Mrs. Ida Pratt, of Fostertown, Fla.; Mrs. Lillie Perry, of Miami, and Mrs. J. M. Knight, of Valdosta, and two brothers, L. H. Dasher, of Miami, and E. S. Dasher, of Valdosta.

MRS. W. B. MCLENDRE.
WAYCROSS, Ga., Sept. 3.—Last rites were held Wednesday for Mrs. W. B. McLendire, 68, of Waycross. She died at the home of her niece, Mrs. Harvey Barrett, in Douglas, Tuesday.

Mrs. McLendire had lived in Waycross, near Brunswick, for a number of years. She was a native of Milledgeville and followed services at Douglas the body was brought here and rites were conducted by the Rev. Z. C. O'Farrell, pastor of the Douglas Baptist church, by the Rev. J. H. Dasher, of Miami, and E. S. Dasher, of Douglas.

J. W. ESTERIDGE.
THOMASVILLE, Ga., Sept. 3.—Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon from the family residence here for J. W. Esteridge, 78, who died at his home on Tuesday night. The services were conducted by the Rev. Silas Johnson, of the First Methodist church, assisted by the Rev. B. G. Jackson. Interment was in Laurel Hill cemetery.

THOMAS J. COCHRAN.
MACON, Ga., Sept. 3.—Funeral services for Thomas J. Cochran, whose wife and humor made him one of the most effective criminal lawyers at the Macon bar, were held at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Interment was in Riverside cemetery. Mr. Cochran died at his home on the Bloomfield road early Wednesday morning following an illness of several months.

Members of the Macon Bar Association attended the funeral services in a body. At a special meeting of that organization held this morning President W. C. Turpin Jr. appointed an honorary escort.

MRS. J. J. ALCOFF.
AMBRISTON, Ga., Sept. 3.—Mrs. Jimmie Jojo Alcott, member of a well-known family here, died last afternoon at an Ambrosia hospital. Dudley, and one brother, Leander Alcott, all of Ambrosia, and a sister, Mrs. Earl Clements, of Atlanta.

Funeral services will be conducted Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock from the home of Mrs. W. H. C. Dudley, conducted by Rev. M. M. McFarland, pastor of the Ambrosia congregation, assisted by Rev. John R. Jorner, pastor of Central Baptist church. Interment will be in Oak Grove cemetery.

Three Dozen Rattlers Found in Gopher Hole

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Sept. 3.—A Georgia gopher laboriously dug and fashioned its home in the soil near the farm of the Striffling family in the Ochlocknee district. Then along came some rattlers and squatted within the premises.

C. E. Crofts, of that vicinity, saw one of the snakes glide into the hole and he and his son proceeded to dig it out. It developed that there were 36 of the reptiles, and the two members of the Crofts family disposed of them, one by one, as they sought to escape. They slew 30 of the reptiles and took six small ones alive. No one could say just what had become of the gopher. Perhaps he went to get an injunction.

BRUNSWICK MORTICIAN DYING OF SUICIDE SHOT

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Sept. 3.—Edward Miller, 25, prominent Brunswick mortician, was rushed to a hospital here tonight with a bullet through his head, self-inflicted, and attending physicians announced there was no chance for him to recover.

Young Miller, one of the best known and most popular young men in Brunswick, shot himself in his apartment at the Sherman hotel. His wife was present, it is understood, but she is hysterical and unable to tell details of the affair. Others in the hotel said they heard the shot, rushed to the room and saw Miller on the floor. No cause can be assigned by his friends for his act.

MINER FOUND DEAD NEAR 'MURDER FARM'

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 3.—(AP)—The body of Thomas Brasky, 40, a miner, was found in West Fork river near Shinnston today, providing a basis for false reports that another victim had been discovered in the investigation of slayings at the "murder farm." Harry F. Powers is alleged to have operated near here.

County authorities said Brasky had been drinking last Sunday night and engaged in a fight. Alex Lusko is under arrest on a charge of felonious assault.

GEORGIAN FOUND DEAD IN SOUTH CAROLINA

AIKEN, S. C., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Avery F. Floyd, 57, of Augusta, Ga., was found shot to death at the home of his brother, Wiley Floyd, in Aiken county, late yesterday. Officers today were holding for questioning a man whose name they refused to reveal.

MAN HELD UNDER BOND IN DROWNING OF CHILD
MOULTRIE, Ga., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Fred Payne, of Cook county, has been ordered held on a charge of involuntary manslaughter in the death by drowning of the 5-year-old adopted son of Mr. and Mrs. John Smith in Little river, August 2, by Judge Waldo DeLoache at a preliminary hearing.

Payne's bond has been fixed at $250. A warrant charging Payne with causing the child's death was sworn out by Mrs. Smith.

Key Sees Strife and Ruin If Cotton Ban Is Approved

Jasper Leader Declares Bolshevism and Revolt Will Result From Farmers Being Unemployed.

Communism and revolution would be the ultimate result of a cessation of cotton production in the United States, in the opinion of Representative William H. Key, of Jasper county, who conferred Thursday with Governor Russell on the proposed legislative prohibition of cotton cultivation.

Informing the governor that he is emphatically opposed to the proposal of Governor Huey Long, of Louisiana, that cotton-growing states enact special legislation to prevent the growing of the staple next year, Mr. Key, a leading member of the legislature, injected a new note into the widely-discussed problem facing southern planters.

"To stop the production of cotton by the southern states of America," he said, "would mean that communities, towns and cities would be flooded with thousands of unemployed, which would result in an economic upheaval that would bring on active communism and revolution."

Even if the governor of Texas decides to throw off the balance of cotton into legislation banning cotton, the Jasper representative said, he still is opposed to the proposal of the Louisiana chief executive. In his conference with Governor Russell Thursday, Mr. Key contended that if legislation is enacted in Georgia against planting of cotton next year, similar laws should be directed against the production of other commodities.

"Why pick on cotton?" "The ban," he told the governor, "should be extended to peanuts and corn; to the dairy industry and to all other industries in which there is an overproduction. Why pick on cotton? Inasmuch as there are more people than there are jobs, why not include the ban to prohibit child-birth until those persons now living have obtained jobs?"

Paraphrasing Representative Key explained that his suggestion as to birth-control, while made to Governor Russell, was in a vein to show what he considers the gross absurdity of the discriminatory proposal against the cotton planter.

"I am against this ban proposal," Mr. Key added, "even if Texas does pass its law. I oppose this legislation because, for one thing, if there is a ban placed against the raising of cotton for one year, the southern farmer is going to find it hard to raise money on any other crops with which to pay taxes and support the government."

"A ban against cotton for one year without a moratorium in behalf of the cotton grower would not benefit the farmer at all. The economic law of supply and demand, while possibly bringing about an increase in the price of cotton if such a ban were enforced, would react disastrously to the state, to the south, and to the entire nation."

The hysteria with which the Long cotton-banning proposal is being discussed was deplored by the Jasper solon. He set forth the contention that in the face of a year's "holocaust" from cotton, the United States would expose itself dangerously if not actually lose the world cotton market.

"England and Russia," he said, "already have announced their intention to go into the production of cotton on a major basis. With Egypt and India already producing in excess of one-seventh of the world output, the south would come to its senses after a year out of the market to find that it no longer had a market."

Sees Credit Destroyed. "If the south bans cotton, it will destroy its credit. It undoubtedly will result in hotheadism and communism if it is carried out. It will add greatly to the already menacing ranks of unemployed. The cotton grower, lulled into the false belief that the year's 'holiday' from the arduous task of growing cotton, will loaf for 12 months, taking it easy, and he will wake up on the verge of starvation."

"This," the Jasperite pointed out, "is no problem of Georgia, or merely any of the other cotton-growing states. It is a south-wide, a nation-wide and a world-wide situation that we are confronting. Cotton production is not a minor factor in the economic life of the United States. It is one of the major industries, and, if destroyed through loss of markets or lack of credit, the steel industry, the automobile industry, the meat-packing industry and every other fundamental industry in the American government will be dragged down in a gigantic collapse such as this country has never before experienced. And there you will find your communism and, ultimately, revolution."

That the plight of the cotton producers is extremely disturbing to those other major industries, Mr. Key said was apparent. These other factors, he said, are apprehensive lest the south given up its production of cotton and enter into competition with their own production.

"No wonder," he observed, "we find certain of the big meat packers ready to buy cotton. It is not purely out of the kindness of their hearts or motivated by sympathy for the stricken cotton planter. It is because they realize that it is better to help the farmer out by buying some of his cotton than it is for the farmer to give up that production and turn his efforts toward the production of cattle."

"Not only should the packers buy the south's cotton, but the steel industry, the automobile industry, and every other industry in the country that hopes to profit should buy cotton, hold it and thus render a help. The people themselves should buy cotton. In 1914 we experienced low cotton prices; the farmers were up against it; and there was a 'buy-a-bale-of-cotton' movement. Cotton then sold for $20 a bale. In front yards, in storehouses and on porches throughout Atlanta and the rest of the south one could see a bale of cotton, bought at $20 to help the farmer."

"Today a bale of cotton can be bought for $20. The people who can afford to should adopt this 'buy-a-bale' slogan and aid the farmer. All this talk about a ban against cotton is not helping. It is extremely injurious to the cotton grower. It is like telling an ailing man that he is seriously ill, and by displaying this hysteria the south is aggravating a condition that can be remedied and, eventually, cured simply through a program of curtailment and diversification. Curtailment, but not a ban."

Offers Resolution. Representative Key made public a proposed resolution which, he said, if adopted by the heads of various government units—state, city, county and village, as well as by civic organizations such as the Rotary, Kiwanis and Civitan clubs—would be a great deal toward improving the situation. The resolution, as formulated by Mr. Key, follows:

"Whereas, an unprecedented condition exists at this time in the economic life of all the citizens, both natural and corporate, of the state and nation; and

"Whereas, the present financial emergency was probably caused by the individual anticipating and spending beyond his or her present means, due to easy credit, installment buying of commodities and things, necessities and luxuries, stocks on margin, and/or super-salesmanship; and

"Whereas, the nation, state, county, city, town or district can be no stronger than the home—the small unit government—and of which links all government is composed; and

"Whereas, we believe that a change of our ideas and ideals of pleasure, from rolling homes to permanent stationery buildings, and true companionship is essential to the return of normal values to our property and the good condition of the treasuries of all government; and

"Whereas, we believe the need today is the revival of business morale, demonstrated by our willingness to haul instead of mainly wanting to ride; and

"Whereas, we believe that the government's paternal attitude to business through tariff and other means is destroying individual initiative which is the basis of democracy and real prosperity; and

"Whereas, the foundation of true prosperity and normalcy is sacrifice; and

"Whereas, the overhead expenses of government during the period of inflation was greatly increased; and

"Now, therefore, be it resolved, that executives of all governments and each and every citizen, both natural and artificial be memorialized and requested to stimulate interest and love for home; to practice the golden rule at all times; to promote and develop civic and Christian communities for the state and nation, both material and moral, and to this end that the departments of government, including all schools, be directed to cut expenses, by the use of the increased purchasing power of the dollar (as $1 of today is equivalent to approximately $1.45 of the year 1929), in order that the deficit that has now accrued, or may further accrue during this year, may be lightened, thereby lightening the burdens of the individual taxpayers to this extent.

"Be it further resolved, to this end, that the state institutions, departments and bureaus be requested to purchase from the local people products at all times when possible, and also to reduce their overhead expenses where possible in keeping with good service and good government."

"Be it further resolved, that this resolution be given serious consideration by all (the towns, counties and other subdivisions composing local units of government as well as the state) and that these principles be promulgated and instilled into the hearts and minds of the people through the medium of our banking institutions, chambers of commerce, Rotary and Kiwanis clubs and all other civic organizations."

U.S. WILL COUNTENANCE LIMITED WIRE TAPPING

Justice Department Says Practice Will Be Allowed
If Other Means Fail.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Wire tapping by federal agents to obtain evidence against criminal gangs is frowned upon by the justice department but not prohibited should other weapons fail.

Acting Attorney-General Thomas D. Thacher said today that orders from the department here to disallow because of wire tapping a prohibition case in a New York federal court should not be construed as constituting a blanket federal policy. Fifteen men and two women were charged with bootlegging in the case dismissed.

"The evidence in this case was viewed closely by the justice department," Thacher said. "It appeared

Running Into Judge Proves Man's Undoing

MEDIA, Pa., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Because he failed to elude a 65-year-old magistrate, from whose courtroom he escaped, Samuel Carey, of Chester, Pa., today faced charges of disorderly conduct, resisting an officer and illegal possession of liquor.

Carey was arrested last night by a deputy sheriff, handcuffed and haled before Magistrate A. C. Mathews. While the deputy recited facts concerning a charge of transporting liquor, Carey dashed from the courtroom, handcuffs and all.

After a long wait Squire Mathews decided to go home. "As he passed an alley, the maniacal figure of Carey, still running, collided with him. The venerable magistrate held Carey until the breathless officer arrived. Back in the courtroom, he held him again—in $1,000 bail."

That practically all of the evidence had been obtained by wire tapping, and that the remaining evidence was not sufficient to warrant prosecution, therefore, it was decided to seek to nolle prosequi the case.

GANDHI PAYS VISIT TO PORT IN ARABIA

ADEN, Arabia, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Mahatma Gandhi and his party arrived here at the entrance to the Red sea today and made a brief visit ashore before resuming their voyage to London for the round table conference.

A large crowd of excited Indians wearing Gandhi caps, who had waited since midnight, cheered as the S. S.

Rajputana steamed alongside the wharf in the dawn. Taking advantage of the cool morning air, he and the other delegates made a series of short trips to points of interest in the town. He was given an enthusiastic reception wherever he went.

THE MILLION DOLLAR NOTE.

The United States treasury, in the interest of economy of currency paper and to facilitate financial transfers, is to issue a note for $1,000,000. The largest note now issued is for $10,000, so the new note will be equal to 100 of them and requires only one handling and counting instead of a hundred in tangible fiscal accounting.

The more interesting fact is that the million dollar note is to be adorned with the portrait of William Harris Crawford, the Georgian who was the seventh secretary of the treasury from October 22, 1816, to March 7, 1825, a period of 9 years, refusing the request of President Adams to continue in the office. Thus his term was the third longest in the history of the treasury. Gallatin serving 13 years and Mellon now serving in his 11th year.

Crawford was a state legislative representative, then United States senator from November 7, 1807, to March 23, 1813, when he resigned to become minister to France, and from that post he resigned to become secretary of war on August 1, 1815. He was a candidate for the presidency in 1824, receiving the electoral votes of Georgia and Tennessee. On his return to this state he became judge of the northern circuit from 1827 until his death in 1834.

Judge Crawford was an eminent, successful secretary of the treasury, having the approval of Presidents Madison, Monroe and Adams. It is a related, but proper recognition of his services to the republic that his portrait will adorn the largest currency note ever issued by any government.

HOW IT WOULD HELP.

The following pertinent letter of inquiry comes through our mail and we give it our prompt attention:

Editor Constitution: We ask our loving friends who are opposed to the present prohibition status how will the repeal of the prohibition law bring back prosperity, as claimed?

Those who hold that it will supplement their assertion with argument and tell us unbelievers just how the repeal of prohibition can end a depression that is world wide. Tell us we are waiting.

Yours for good times,

GEORGE O'BRIAN,

Atlanta, September 3, 1931.

The prosperity in which the people are interested is that of our own country, knowing full well that the "world-wide" depression would have little concern for the United States if they would attend strictly to their own affairs.

For nearly 12 years they have allowed the experiment of prohibition to cut out of the revenues of the nation, the states, the counties and the cities the taxes previously levied in the regulation of the manufacture and commerce in liquors. Those taxes, plus the average $40,000,000 used in attempts to enforce prohibition, have been shifted to the shoulders of the people in general. Meanwhile, the illicit liquor makers, smugglers, rum runners and bootleggers have been, and are, reaping stupendous profits from their several lawless trades. And meanwhile, national and other governments are accumulating enormous deficits and debts from lack of revenues.

The prosperity of any people can be sapped and suspended by the growth and weight of taxes upon the labor, earnings and properties of the people.

What the opponents of prohibition "is" contend for is a lawful regulation of an unsuppressible traffic of gigantic volume now held in the hands of outlaws and the application of the vast profits they are making to the proper revenues of the people's governments.

It is justly estimated that a drastically regulated legal liquor trade, without any sort of recurrence of the saloon and its evils, would make it possible to abolish the federal income taxes and reduce almost entirely the exorbitant and useless prohibition enforcement appropriations.

That such a sane, safe and moral policy would add immensely to the forces working for the restored prosperity of the nation scarcely admits of a doubt. The economic emergencies of the people are moving strongly to substitute regulation and revenues for the present futile and unworkable laws that promote the most profitable and irrepressible outflow known to the whole world.

SELF-SEALING TARIFFS.

This will be a queerly geared old world when all the nations become tariffized on the United States plan and each of them shuts out the trade of all others that in any way impinges upon its "home industries and markets."

Because of the wonderfully and fearfully made Hawley-Smoot double-acting centripetal and centrifugal tariff machine, accoladed and blessed by President Hoover, we of the United States are now getting foretastes of the Dead Sea fruits of universal national protective tariffs built upon prohibition principles.

Multiplied complaints are uttered against the intrusions of government into the business affairs of the nation. It is charged that too many of the essential businesses of the country are being regimented and regulated by government, until the free play of industrial and commercial forces is almost lost, and that such productive interests as agriculture and labor are the earliest and worst sufferers from the evil of "too much government in business."

Such complaints have their sound foundations, but the mother of them is a tariff system that is purposely designed to favor the few who are government favorites and penalize the many, to supply the favors. Most of the government regulations, prohibitions and restrictions now imposed upon the industries and commerce of the country would be unnecessary, just as they were once unknown, but for the necessity upon the republican party to sustain its monstrous tariff policy. The only relief from them must be found in honest protection to home industries and labor and international reciprocity in goods and exchanges—the policy of the democratic party.

FACTS HARD TO BELIEVE.

Fact-resistance is one of the striking peculiarities of the common mind. Unless a new and unlooked-for fact can be attached to it, something as one would apply a porous plaster the average mentality remains static.

The present era of industrial and business depression has had its widest effect upon the popular psychology and led nearly everyone to believe that "things never were worse." Pessimism has been epidemic and the general feeling has been to haul close to shore and save until it hurt.

But the reaction from all that caution and economy has presented new and profitable conditions to the people generally. It has reduced prices for both producers and consumers, but the advantages of that scaling down in the costs of living have been with the consumers. On the average the dollar that was rated at 100 cents in the open markets of 1926 is now worth in goods and services on a level of 140 cents; that is, it will buy those necessities in 40 per cent larger volume and quantity than five years ago, when every one thought national prosperity at its peak.

It is only those who do the family marketing who are slowly realizing that change in the value of their dollars. They find it, as compared with 1926, worth $1.53 in the clothing store, $1.38 in the food market, $1.72 in paying for electric light and power, $1.29 in repairing or building a home, and $2.19 in putting new tires on the family flivver.

When these facts get generally set in the minds of the people they will, if wise, commence to restock their depleted closets and cellars at prices not likely to go lower yet, and that will start the wheels of the dynamo that produce the high prosperity of a nation.

Zealous Reporter.

The story of the burglars who disguised themselves as electricians, of which I read in the papers, recalls the manner in which a too-zealous junior reporter once lost his job. There had been in his district a number of burglaries committed by two thieves who posed as gas inspectors and got the hang of the house while looking ostensibly at the meters. The aforesaid junior was put on to write up the story and, after suitable inquiries, opened with this snappy sentence: "If two men disguised as gas inspectors ask to see your meter, show them the door—or let the dog do it."

Electrifying St. Peter's.

In a short time now the bells of St. Peter's will be rung by electricity. The power station in the Vatican City will supply the necessary current, and the bell-ringers who have worked for periods running from 20 to 40 years, will be pensioned off. The bells will be heard more frequently in future, for the Pope has decided that ball concerts can now be given. Even the giant "Campanone," which booms forth its deep tones every evening, will take part in the execution of this new program. Two firms, a German and an Italian, are doing the necessary work.

The Wholesome Toombs Idea.

In the convention that made what is left of the constitution of 1877, General Robert Toombs thrillingly advertised the pledge of justice extorted from King John by the hardy barons of Britain—"I will sell to none, I will deny to none, I will delay to none, I will not play the game of the Toombs." Toombs insisted that the people should have enough courts, no matter how many, in order to "carry out these grand principles."

The Lonesome House

Oh, the lonesome house is a-sighin'!
An' a-wantin' its folks back home.
The wind in the trees is a-moanin'!
For they're gone after to roam.

Oh, the wind is a-sighin'!
An' the house is a-sighin'!
While the leaves are a-fallin'!
An' summer is a-dyin'.

Oh, the lonesome house is a-wearin'!
For its folks who'll return no more.
The wind in the trees is a-screamin'!
But they're happy on the golden shore.

LOOKING AND LISTENING

BY SAM W. SMALL.

The Jail Problem in Georgia Calls Loudly for Profitable Reforms.

With the crime wave mounting higher, with murder increasing in number monthly, with gangsters shooting up the streets of our most populous cities, and with the jails overflowing with prisoners, it is not surprising that the public expense, we will soon find ourselves working our fingers to the bone to pay the taxes to pay the crimes bill.

How To Handle Small Fry.

Judge Pomeroy agrees with many of the most experienced criminologists and social workers of the nation, that the greater percentage of the small fry offenders, especially those charged for the first time, should be put upon probation by the magistrates. The law should permit every justice of the peace and police judge to release on probation thousands of young persons, and men suddenly tempted into minor crimes, have been in order to get more accommodations for the use of the probation system. It is far cheaper to support one or more county probation officers than to support a jail crowded for months with prisoners. The state laws should provide fully for such summary provisions.

Even Here at the Capital.

Just this week the Tower, our Fulton county jail, has had 506 prisoners crowded into its cells. The county commissioners are trying to oust a deputy sheriff and his family from the building in order to get more accommodations for prisoners without building a new jail.

STIMSON SEES BRIGHTER FUTURE

What did he discuss with the foreign ministers? He said he talked with the foreign ministers.

Was it likely that the disarmament conference set for next February would be postponed? "As far as I know there has been no postponement."

How about the financial situation in Europe? "The secretary smiled and pulled a paper from his pocket."

"I expected you would ask me that," he said. "I prepared a memorandum."

A secretary appeared from the distance with a handful of the statements, but Mr. Stimson was asked to sign a few more before he was passed out.

"The month which has elapsed since the close of the seven-power conference in London has given us a chance to begin to appraise the result of that conference and of the various meetings which preceded and followed it."

From the information which has come to me, I believe that Germany has received a new spirit of courage and confidence. The result of the recent plebiscite in Prussia, the fact that on the day when the German banks reopened the deposits exceeded the withdrawals, together with many other similar indications, all point to more hopeful conditions and spirit."

"Even more encouraging have been the meetings of the French and German ministers and the friendly and conciliatory spirit in which Prime Minister Laval and Chancellor Brüning have been working for the settlement of the vital political questions which divide their countries. The same is true of the meetings which have been held between the ministers of Germany and Britain, and of Germany and Italy. Such informal meetings constitute the most effective method of approaching and discussing these political problems, and until they are thus approached in such a spirit, any thorough economic reconstruction of central Europe is almost impossible."

"I think there is now good reason to believe that these European statesmen are now working for the respite granted by Mr. Hoover's moratorium as well as the recommendations of the London conference, are bent upon the realization of the foundations of political good-will, upon which a lasting structure of peace and economic prosperity can finally be erected. It was very evident in each of the countries I visited that the spirit and policy of the presidential moratorium was widely appreciated and was proving helpful in many directions."

One-year treasury certificates bearing 1 1/2 per cent interest, offered also on Monday, will all go in exchange for part of the $634,000,000 in treasury certificates maturing on September 15. The bonds on the auction were closed Tuesday night after having been oversubscribed four times.

In December a total of $900,000,000 of certificates and treasury notes are due. Already faced with a deficit of $400,000,000, it seemed certain that the financial branch of the government would have to borrow large additional sums in December to pay for its operations until the income tax payments are received in March.

The treasury was criticized from some sources because its entire $1,100,000,000 of September financing had not been in short-term paper bearing only about one-third the amount of interest which will be paid on bonds.

While officials would not comment formally on the criticism, they were known to feel that the critics did not fully realize the immensity of the task faced by the treasury in handling the short-term paper, raising money through borrowing to pay the expenses of the government and laying the

A Stitch in Time Also Saves Much Amateur Patching

By Robert Quillen

This is an appeal to the government—to the men who possess power to affect the welfare of 120 million people. Your first duty is to safeguard the state, but, as Mussolini recently said, anything that is good for the state is good for the citizen, as anything that is good for the citizen must be in the long run good for the state.

The people face the coming winter with ever-increasing dread. They have been told, by men in position to know the truth, that the first frost will find six million men jobless and desperate.

They feel that something should be done to prevent suffering—that wisdom could find a way to prevent the shame of breadlines in this richest of nations.

They know from hard experience that seasons of depression, whatever their cause, are prolonged by the hoarding and hiding of money. They know that merchants in small towns all over America are unwilling or unable to buy staple goods for which they have regular demand.

They know that people everywhere are postponing repairs, building, operations, dental work, refurbishing and countless other matters because they can't borrow money. They are told by men of reputation that government has power to mend matters.

They are told that this country has 40 per cent of the world's gold lying idle in vaults.

They are told that the Federal Reserve Bank system could enter the market with one or two billion dollars, buy up the bonds in which the country's timid capital is invested, and thus so flood the land with money that the banks would be forced to make loans in order to employ their idle funds.

They are told not to understand these matters, but they know that times are good when money is plentiful and easy to get.

Conservative men say that any flooding of the land with money would cause inflation—an artificial boom. But a boom is easier to control than a depression, and much easier to bear.

If that is the worst result to be feared, isn't the present need sufficient to justify taking the risk? Congress will meet soon, and excited, unwise men will propose many foolish ways to mend matters.

Isn't it wiser to make money plentiful and risk inflation rather than leave the problem to alarmed and hysterical legislators whose first and last solution will include an assault on the public treasury?

You can check inflation. You can't check a congress bent on giving away money.

ground work for funding the $5,000,000,000 in first and fourth Liberty Loan bonds which are callable in 1932 and 1933.

Beginning in the last few months of the last fiscal year the treasury has borrowed approximately $500,000,000 in a short-term bill program which it has paid a very small interest. This financing has been carried on in such small amounts that it attracted but little attention. The amount of interest paid on this money was less than on any other form of security.

At the end of June the average interest rate on all government securities was 3.56 per cent.

The short-term debt which must be funded every 12 months now amounts to more than $5,000,000,000 and to make it any larger would prove embarrassing in that it would have to be paid in the period of depression or funded while at the same time additional new money would have to be raised to meet the government requirements.

BEAVERS IS GIVEN TIME TO DECIDE

one of Beavers' greatest ambitions is to serve out his full 43 years, a record which probably will be unattainable by any chief in the country. Members of the committee, it was said, are sympathetic with Beavers in this desire, and the committee will not push their threatened ouster proceedings if Beavers will agree to retire on pension in January.

The possibility injected into the police chief matter Thursday night was that the mayor may appoint a new police committee in January, when all council members will be elected for the ensuing year, and that the personnel of the new committee might have the job of appointing Atlanta's new police chief, if Beavers retires.

Should the committee proceed against Beavers in the event he refuses to retire, it was asked, would Detective Chief A. Lamar Poole, who is assistant chief of police, would automatically become acting chief during Beavers' absence? Beavers, it was said, would resist to the bitter end any attempt to make him retire.

Lieutenant of Detectives T. O. Sturdivant and O. H. Pendley, secretary of the department, are conceded the leading candidates for the place should the chief leave the department. Sturdivant is known to have strong support from high city officials, and Pendley is known to the unqualified backing of at least two committee members, the other members not having stated any preference.

The meeting of the committee with Chief Beavers was held behind closed doors with the public and press excluded. The meeting was held in the office of the committee, and the conference was held in private.

Alderman Murphy explained that the committee had held several meetings of the committee, but that the majority of the matter required that it should be handled in a closed session.

The police committee had insisted on Beavers' immediate retirement after the chief replied to the committee, the only way in which Beavers could be forced to quit would be through the preference of incompetence and a public trial before the committee, according to City Attorney James L. Mayson.

The committee's decision on the police matter was subject to court review if Beavers appealed, as he did on a previous occasion when a police committee fired him. Beavers won that fight.

Chief Beavers and members of the committee appeared in the best of spirits after the executive session. At times, Beavers was laughing and joking, and the committee members were laughing and joking with him.

COUNTY WAGE CUT COMES UP TODAY

Board To Meet in Special Session on Salary Schedule.

Approximately $150,000 is expected to be slashed from the pay roll of Fulton county employees at a special meeting of the county board of commissioners to be held at the courthouse at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, called for the consideration of general reductions for all employees making more than $200 a month.

It was understood Thursday that Walter B. Stewart had drawn his proposition for presentation and that the proposed cuts range from 5 to 20 per cent. Mr. Stewart, at regular session of the commission Wednesday, was the one who moved that the matter be taken under consideration at the special meeting to be held today. His plan, it is understood, will affect all employees of the county save those whose salaries are set by law. These include Solicitor-General John A. Boykin, solicitor of criminal court of Atlanta, John S. McClelland, two city court judges, Hugh M. Dorsey and Jesse M. Wood, and Judge Garland M. Watkins, of juvenile court.

Where Laundry Owner Met Death at Robber's Hand

Here is a view of the inside of the Model laundry at Houston street and Parkway drive, where C. Mr. Mangum, it is believed, was shot as he came from his private office into the main office. In the photo are J. A. Bailey and W. M. the Scripto Manufacturing Company on Houston street, where he found J. H. Keller, night watchman, and J. G. Murphy, salesman, who was working on his books. He told the two men of the shooting and the three rushed into the Model office.

Mr. Mangum was dead when the three reached his side. He was lying behind a small fence which separates the main offices from the waiting room in front of his private office and that of George Griffin Jr., his partner.

Police were called immediately and their investigation disclosed Mr. Mangum had been shot through the left side. Death had been almost instantaneous, they said. Police concluded Mr. Mangum had been shot as he emerged from his private office, where his golf clubs were found standing in the corner in which he usually placed them on returning from the links. They presumed, they said, that the slayer had fired from near the doorway which leads to a corridor leading to the Houston street entrance.

The police said they believed the fatal shot had been fired by the negro immediately after he entered the office, as there was no indication of a struggle. They believe, they said, that the slayer was surprised to find Mr. Mangum in the office, fired when he had no time to load and without having been more than a few feet inside the doorway.

The body of Mr. Mangum was removed to the parlors of H. M. Patterson & Son, where it was found a .32-caliber bullet had entered his left side and lodged beneath his right shoulder, passing almost entirely through his body. The bullet, removed and turned over to the police, will be used in an effort to trace the slayer, though detectives said that because it was a widely-used type of bullet, they had little hope of making use of it in their hunt for the murderer.

As soon as news of the slaying reached police headquarters a number of detectives were assigned to the case and every beat patrolman was furnished with a meager description of the negro furnished by the three who had seen him flee the building.

Mr. Mangum and Mr. Griffin organized the Model laundry here in 1919, having celebrated their twelfth anniversary in business last May. Together the two had built the modern plant which housed their property at Houston street and Parkway drive, one of the most up-to-date in this section. Prior to launching the enterprise with Mr. Griffin Mr. Mangum was assistant manager of the Excelsior laundry, where he had gone to work almost immediately after leaving school.

Son of Ex-Sheriff. Mr. Mangum was born in Atlanta and lived here all his life. He was the oldest son and namesake of the former sheriff, who was for years a powerful political leader in Fulton county. On leaving school he obtained a place at the Excelsior laundry and worked his way up until he became assistant manager. He left the Excelsior to form the partnership with Mr. Griffin.

Mr. Mangum was an Elk, a Mason, and a member of the Atlanta Athletic Club and the West End Golf Club. He was deeply interested in a number of civic enterprises and widely known for his gifts to charity.

As in business, Mr. Mangum was well known in golfing circles, being a familiar figure on both the East Lake and West End courses. He also was an enthusiastic follower of wrestling, seldom missing a match staged here.

Mr. Mangum was never married. For years he has made his home with his brother, J. O. Mangum, at 942 Highland view avenue, N. E. He also is survived by a sister, Mrs. E. C. Gibson, of Bastrop, La., and three other brothers, Captain R. G. Mangum, of the United States army, stationed at Fort Benning; L. B. Mangum, of Dallas, and J. E. Mangum, of Washington, D. C.

The three out-of-town brothers and Mrs. Gibson were notified of his death and funeral arrangements were delayed pending their arrival here.

CITY OF LAGRANGE DEFENDANT IN SUITS

LAGRANGE, Ga., Sept. 3.—Two affidavits of illegality were filed in the Troup superior court on Tuesday against the city of LaGrange, one anticipating the city's attempt to sell a piece of property for taxes and the other asking court judgment dismissing paving bills. The plaintiffs were Mrs. Ella Parham and M. F. McLendon.

Mrs. Parham, who owns two houses in the city, claims they were bought with adjusted compensation insurance paid her by the United States government upon the death of her husband, Ely Parham, in 1924 and are therefore free from all taxation.

48 Years a "Modern" Store

Since 1856 a partner in ATLANTA'S PROGRESS

THREE-QUARTERS of a century is a long time. Any commercial organization that survives so long must have served well, must have grown with the community, must have taken an active part in the community's growth.

The Atlanta Gas Light Company has done precisely that. Springing from the days when gas was a new form of light, as our company name indicates, we have progressed to the day when gas is looked on as the most efficient form of fuel for domestic use—cooking, refrigeration, hot water, house heating.

Gas service has meant a great deal in Atlanta's development. Each improvement has made the city a better place to live, has helped it grow—and that has been true through the years.

But the greatest step of all came with the advent of natural gas—the rich fuel whose heat is nearly double that of manufactured gas. For in addition to bringing gas at a price-level which permits wider household use, it opens up the opportunity for a whole new group of industries to enter Atlanta, bringing new payrolls, adding to our wealth.

Year by year, Atlanta Gas Light Company has shown itself a real partner in Atlanta's progress.

GAS

—THE MODERN WAY

Natural gas is bringing new comfort, convenience and economy to Atlanta homes—modernizing cooking, refrigeration, hot water supply and house heating. We are prepared to show you in dollars and cents how little you can modernize your home with gas.

BY JOHN L. COOLEY.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(A) A substantial increase in volume marked the further decline of stock prices today. In the morning, trading was fairly active, but it tapered off in the afternoon.

There were two selling movements. The first, coming in the morning, affected chiefly the railroads. A reaction followed the early decline of the railroads, but in the final hour offerings in other groups increased and the market closed at a level only slightly below the opening.

The second selling movement came in the afternoon, when the market was again affected by a general decline. The closing was at a level only slightly below the opening.

Whereas a week ago the market was willing to ignore bad news, recent developments of an unfavorable tenor or have been used as a basis for lowering prices. On the debit side of the ledger today stood the omission of the Case dividend, the weakness of the Berlin Bourse, where trading was resumed after a suspension of nearly two months, and a disappointing August sales record by a leading mail order house. Abandonment of the German-Austrian customs union and the overvaluation of the $200,000,000 long-term treasury loan were announcements which the market saw fit to ignore.

The rails completed most of their decline by noon, leaving industrials and utilities to bear the brunt of the late selling. Case's report, however, losing as much as 10-12 points. Steel closed 82-7/8 against its old low of 80-1/8, the lowest quotation since 1922, when it sold at 80-1/8, making the net loss 2-7/8.

A number of inactive rails made spectacular declines, notably Texas & Pacific, off 32-1/2; Cotton Belt, off 10-1/2; and Central of New Jersey, down 22-1/2, but the reaction in more frequently traded carrier equities was somewhat less, on the average, than yesterday.

Only the highest grade bonds were able to maintain much resistance against the movement for lower security prices.

Oil prices continue to firm and three important companies in the east Texas field posted 68-cent quotations. This compares with 13 cents prior to the market fall order of a fortnight ago.

Commodities closed steady. Wheat reached new lows and then firmed, finishing with a net gain.

Cotton rallied 3-8 to 7-8 net.

Corn was not particularly upset by the break in stocks and was off only 3-4 to 4 points when the market closed.

Foreign Markets.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

LONDON.—Stock market cheerful. Yesterday's report that the conversion of the war loan will be voluntary and that there will be no tax on fixed income securities, was supplemented today by a rumor that the income tax will remain unchanged after September 1, a further advance, especially gilt-edged securities, home rails and industrials, and the market closed with a confident tone.

PARIS.—The bourse opened irregularly influenced by uncertainty over the London government's plans and unsettledness in other markets. International shares were generally lower, but New York advances, but French securities strengthened and closed well sustained.

BERLIN.—The bourse reopened today and an avalanche of selling orders, principally from German holders, forced prices to 20 to 30 per cent below the closing of July 11, the last day of trading.

Dividends.

MACDONALD'S SON PLACED IN CABINET

Youthful Laborite Given Post as Undersecretary of Dominions.

LONDON, Sept. 3.—(AP)—The cabinet today put the finishing touches to its economy and new taxation program and filled the remaining ministerial posts, awarding an undersecretaryship to Malcolm MacDonald, son of the prime minister.

The selection of young MacDonald, who got the post of dominions undersecretary, was the cause of widespread satisfaction on personal grounds, the story of how his father almost begged him to disengage family ties and line up with the bulk of the labor party against the national government, has touched public imagination.

Major Gwilym Lloyd George, son of the liberal leader, who is little known to the public, but is regarded in political circles as a hard-working member of the house of commons, received the post of parliamentary secretary to the board of trade.

Another comparatively young man, Major Oliver Stanley, became undersecretary to the home office. In many political observers see the future leader of the conservative party and, perhaps, a prime minister of England.

Two men prominent in social as well as political circles were among the conservative appointees. They are Major Alfred Duff Cooper, who becomes financial secretary to the war office, and Sir Philip Sassoon, wealthy and a personal friend of the Prince of Wales, who is undersecretary for air.

Other appointments are: Attorney-general, Sir William Joynson-Hicks; lord advocate, Craigie M. Aitchison; postmaster-general, Major W. Ormsby-Gore; minister of pensions, Major G. C. Tyrone, and minister of transport, P. J. Pybus.

The government expects to have 332 votes, a majority of 28, when it asks a vote of confidence in the house of commons Tuesday after the special session opens.

DAUGHTER'S 'AMNESIA'
DENIED BY DR. HUFF

Dr. L. N. Huff, owner of the L. N. Huff Optical Company, 213 Mitchell street, N. W., advised The Constitution Thursday by wire from New York city, that his daughter, Marion, 16, was not a victim of amnesia, as was reported. The girl went to a theater, and became "lost" when she left it by another door. She was "soured speechless," Dr. Huff stated, but was all right when found a few hours later by her brother. The family resides at 963 Ponce de Leon avenue.

"Engagement" Party Hears Wedding News

PASADENA, Cal., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Friends who gathered at a party here yesterday to hear an announcement of the engagement of Barbara McLeod, Pasadena society girl, and Gerald C. Fielding, film actor, were informed the two already were married. The couple said the ceremony was performed secretly several days ago.

NOTED ENGINEER DIES IN ARIZONA

TUCSON, Ariz., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Courtney DeKalb, 80, international known mining engineer of New York and Tucson, died here last night of an apoplectic stroke.

He was noted for his research work in remote regions of South America, Mexico, Spain and Morocco.

He investigated the mineral resources of Spain and Morocco as a trade commissioner for the United States department of commerce.

DeKalb taught mining engineering many years ago at the University of Minnesota, and lectured in 1925 at DePaul University.

He married Miss Frances Douglas, of Cornwall, Conn., here in 1913. She survives.

LINKED BY POLICE

HOUSTON, Texas, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Links between the "blotting out" of John Cherry and the double slaying of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Jones were being sought in Houston today as police worked on the theory that Cherry was taken out of this city Saturday night, some 36 hours before Mr. and Mrs. Jones were murdered—and that the same gangsters were responsible for all three deaths.

It became virtually certain today that the body of a man found floating in the Brazos river at East Columbia yesterday was that of Cherry, noted police character, who was being sought for questioning on the Jones case at the time his body was found.

"MECHANICAL" UNION OF CHURCHES SCORED

SEWANE, Tenn., Sept. 3.—(AP)—The "mechanical" union is dangerous, and undesirable, the very Rev. William H. Nes, dean of Christ Church cathedral of New Orleans, declared today in closing the international convention of the Episcopal Brotherhood of St. Andrew here.

"It is lamentable that Christianity is divided as it is at the present time," said Dean Nes, "but at the same time we need to keep in mind the dangers of a mechanical union, for such would be decidedly dangerous. We need to put behind us any idea of taking existing Christian bodies taking them in a bottle and shaking it up and then drinking the result. Any such hodge-podge of Christianity would be worse than our present divisions and would only result in further schisms."

WAR VETERANS' DEATH
UNDER INVESTIGATION

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 3.—(AP)—J. B. Bowland, investigator for the Dade county attorney's office, today attempted to learn whether William N. Perry, shell-shocked World War veteran, died by his own hand last night or was wounded fatally by a bullet from the pistol of a policeman.

Perry, who came here four months ago from Canton, Ohio, in an attempt to regain his health, stood off policemen and deputies for nearly two hours last night after locking himself in a closet in his home. He refused to emerge from his barricaded place when officers threw gas bombs into the room, and shot at policemen who came near the closet.

Police said several of them fired shots during the incident, but none took effect.

CONSTANCE BENNETT RE-ENTERS HOSPITAL

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Constance Bennett, movie star, whose $30,000-a-week salary was criticized by a group of motion picture exhibitors several days ago, entered a New York hospital today.

Miss Bennett, it is understood, has not fully recovered from an appendicitis operation performed in Europe 18 months ago.

COMMUNIST'S 'BEATING' DOUBTED BY POLICE

GREENVILLE, S. C., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Sheriff Cliff R. Bramlett today said he was inclined to doubt the story of Mrs. Clara Holden, organizer for the National Textile Workers' Union, that she was seized and whipped by a band of men Tuesday.

He said he had investigated and found nothing to substantiate the story.

REPRESENTATIVE WHITE URGES SPECIAL SESSION

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Representative White, republican of Ohio, today urged President Hoover to call a special session of congress to deal with the business depression. At the same time, the recently elected representative said he submitted a plan to President Hoover, for a special session of congress to deal with the business depression.

As part of his rehabilitation program, White said he would have the Volstead act modified to legalize the manufacture of wine and beer, "pending the repeal of the 18th amendment."

MARYLAND PUBLISHER KILLED IN AUTO CRASH

KIMBALL, Neb., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Walter P. Montague, 57, a Roxton, Neb., magazine publisher, was killed instantly near here today when his automobile overturned.

Montague was driving when the accident occurred, and was killed when he applied the emergency brake. The car went into a ditch and crushed him.

Girl Leaps From Window
After Practicing Dive

AIRKEN, S. C., Sept. 3.—(AP)—After practicing a new dive during the afternoon, 12-year-old Elizabeth Allen, swimming enthusiast, dived in her sleep from her bedroom window last night to the ground 18 feet below. Severe bruises were her only injuries.

SEABRY HITS ADE OF MAYOR WALKER

Accountant Missing
When Sought for Questioning
by City Probers.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Chief Counsel Samuel Seabry today described as a "suspicious circumstance" the disappearance of Mayor Walker's personal accountant, Russell T. Sherwood, who is wanted for questioning by the legislative committee investigating the municipal government.

Seabry referred to Sherwood's departure from an Atlantic City hotel where he was found after it first became known he was wanted, as a flight from the state's jurisdiction.

"It is difficult for me to reconcile this action," he said, "with the repeated assurances that have been given that those close to the mayor have nothing to hide."

While he described Sherwood as a "personal agent" of Mayor Walker, Seabry said the matters he wanted to question the missing man about did not concern the mayor's personal affairs, but were business affairs.

Sherwood vanished from New York several weeks ago when it was announced the investigating committee was preparing to subpoena him. A few days later he was found in the hotel at Atlantic City by a New York newspaper reporter.

He would not return until Mayor Walker was back from his European trip. It became known today that he had left the hotel and vanished from this prompted Seabry's statement.

MAN, WOMAN HELD IN DUFFY'S DEATH

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Paul Carbo, 27, and Miss Vivian Lee, 19, a dancer, were arrested today in connection with the slaying of Mickey Duffy, Philadelphia racketeer, in Atlantic City.

They denied knowledge of the killing but were held as fugitives from justice for New Jersey authorities.

Two New York detectives went to a hotel early today and ascended to Carbo's room. While the detectives were in the room, they heard a shouting match between the two.

Carbo, unarmed, and dressed in a lounge suit, was taken to the police station. I read about in the papers," police quoted him as saying.

"From a huge assortment of clothes he picked out a grey suit, sport shoes, a silk shirt and accompanied the detectives, with Miss Lee, a night club dancer both here and in Atlantic City. Her real name is given by the police as Vivian Malfetti.

CAUSES $70,000 LOSS

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Fire of undetermined origin gutted the McConough Furniture Company building here tonight, causing an estimated loss of $70,000. An adjoining business structure was damaged slightly.

The blaze for a time threatened the entire business block, and falling debris endangered the lives of hundreds of spectators.

CAROLINIAN GRANTED DEATH SENTENCE STAY

RALEIGH, N. C., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Governor O. Max Gardner today said he would give Herman Casey, Lenoir county truck driver under sentence to be electrocuted September 11, a six-week reprieve.

"Casey was convicted of killing J. C. Causey, Suffolk (Va.) lumberman, July 2, 1929. Superior Court Judge W. A. Devin recently refused a plea for a new trial for Casey, asked on the grounds that new evidence had been secured. Casey appealed to the supreme court. The reprieve will allow time for the court to act upon the appeal.

LONG, MISSISSIPPIANS TO CONFER ON ROADS

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Governor Huey P. Long informed newspapers here today that a meeting with Governor-elect Mike Connor, of Mississippi; members of the Mississippi legislature, state highway officials and "good roads enthusiasts" from early date in New Orleans to discuss the building of a short-line paved route to the Mississippi gulf coast and the hardworking of other Mississippi roads to connect with Louisiana's improved highway system.

2 KILLED, 3 WOUNDED IN ARKANSAS BATTLE

FORT SMITH, Ark., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Two men were killed and three wounded late last night in a highway gun battle that occurred between officers hunting a group of filling station bandits tried to halt an approaching automobile.

The dead were Police Captain W. A. Bourland and a suspected robber identified as Orh Crow, of Tulsa and Bartlesville, Okla. His companions, who gave their names as Everett and Ted Wackerly, were in a hospital under guard today in critical condition from their wounds.

Patrolman Ralph Howard, who was wounded in the battle, also was identified today by J. E. Casey, well, of Spiro, as the three men who robbed his filling station last night.

RATE CASES DELAYED BY MISSISSIPPI BODY

JACKSON, Miss., Sept. 3.—(AP)—The sand and gravel and the cotton rate cases have been continued until the October session, the Mississippi railroad commission announced today at the completion of its regular calendar. Public interest in the present docket centered chiefly about the applications of Mississippi railroads for upward revision of rates on these two commodities.

ILLITERACY DECREASE REVEALED IN REPORT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—(AP)—A United States population 4.3 per cent illiterate—4,283,753 persons over 10 years of age unable to read or write in any language—was announced today by the census bureau.

This represented a numerical drop of 648,152 since 1920, when the illiterates totaled 6 per cent.

Women, once the less literate portion of the population, surpassed men in percentage able to read and write for a second decade.

TWO HELD FOR PERJURY IN MINE LABOR CASES

HARLAN, Ky., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Indictments charging perjury in connection with trials of mine labor cases were returned today by a grand jury here against W. B. Jones and W. H. Hightower, former secretary and president, respectively, of the United Mine Workers at Evans. Both men are in jail under three murder indictments each in connection with a clash May 2 near Evans between deputy sheriffs and miners, in which four men were slain.

STUDIO CLUB OPENS ITS WINTER SEASON

The Studio Club has formally opened its winter season with a meeting in its clubrooms on Forsyth street. The Little Theater group had charge, and plans were made for putting on the best series of plays ever staged by amateur players in Atlanta.

Richard Morems, chairman of the group, brought out that this was the fourth year the Studio Club has produced plays, making its Little Theater the oldest existing amateur organization in the city. This fact coupled with the club having secured a professional director of national reputation gives promise of something really good for Atlanta theatergoers this season, he said.

The drive for sustaining membership was launched with the appointment of the following members to act as chairmen of the teams for selling season tickets for the plays: Mrs. Florence Brine, Mrs. Edward Campbell, Mrs. Katherine Conner, Mrs. Ethel Neil Shiffert, Mrs. Cyril Smith, Miss Catherine Zahner and Guy Woolford.

Little Columbus Girl, Talkie Star, Appears Tonight

en will make a personal appearance at 9 o'clock, promptly. She is the little girl in the picture "Seed," now playing at the Rialto. You have seen the picture remember the girl who has four brothers and who has such a big time playing baseball with the gang.

Other pictures in which Helen has appeared include "Cimarron," "Beat Ideal," "The Big Trail," "His First Command," etc. And there are several in which she has been leading roles that are to be released in the next few weeks.

Tonight, at the Rialto, Helen will be accompanied by her mother and her brother, Billy Parrish. Bill, by the way, himself played with Ruth Chatterton in "The Right to Love," and also appeared in "The Affairs of Annabelle."

The family is on its way back to Hollywood after filling a personal appearance engagement in New York. They can only make the one appearance on an Atlanta stage, tonight at 9 o'clock at the Rialto.

Miss Boynton and Mr. Brown Honored by Miss Frances Spalding

One of the most attractive parties of the week was the buffet supper given last evening by Miss Frances Spalding at her home on Rivers road in honor of Miss Myra Boynton and James Randolph Brown, and members of their wedding party. The dining table had for its central decoration a bowl of gorgeous red dahlias, which were raised in the beautiful garden of the home by John Spalding, father of the young hostess. A miniature bridal party, which had graced the table at the silver wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Spalding, formed an entrancing tableau in the center of the lace-covered table and a tiny bride marked the place for Miss Boynton. The doll, arrayed in wedding attire, was used first at the golden wedding anniversary of Miss Spalding's grandparents, the late Dr. and Mrs. E. L. Connolly.

The guests included Miss Boynton, Mr. Brown, Mrs. Benjamin Matthews, Dr. and Mrs. Charles E. Boynton, Miss Mamie Bass, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Boynton, Mrs. Roy Campbell, of Chattanooga, Tenn.; Miss Katherine Pattillo, of Chattanooga, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. Croom Partridge, Mr. and Mrs. Ebon Hardie Jr., of New Orleans, La.; Miss Augusta Porter, Miss Sara Law, Miss Estelle Boynton, Miss Margaret Tate, of Tate; Miss Jane Steele, Birmingham, Ala.; Miss Julia Andrews, of Raleigh, N. C.; Miss Sally Spalding, Miss Elizabeth Spalding, Miss Ann Grady, and Newton Craig, Pickett Mills, of Miami, Fla.; Morgan Poer, Allen Ford, Kirk Parler, of Nashville, Tenn.; James Archer, Steve Tate, of Tate, Ga.; Roy Campbell, of Chattanooga, Tenn., and Hubert Brown, of Troy, Alabama.

Miss Timmons Joins Debutantes in October

Mrs. Robert Timmons and Miss Betty Timmons, who spent the past two weeks at Grove Park Inn, at Asheville, N. C., left yesterday by motor for Wichita, Kans., their former home. Miss Timmons will be among the debutante coteries this winter, and will return to Atlanta in October to join the Debutante Club of 1931-32.

Miss Timmons was one of the popular visiting girls at the cotillion given last Friday by the Junior League, of Asheville, at Biltmore Forest Club in honor of the nine new "provisionals." The cotillion was marked by a "charity ball" in order to complete the fund for the baby home which is the chief beneficiary of the league's activities. The money for the new building was a legacy in a will, and the county provided the space for it on the spacious grounds of the county orphan's home. The architect who contributed his work to the husband of the league president, Mrs. W. W. Dodge Jr. The purpose of the institution is to house the infant wards of the juvenile court until they are adopted.

Culbertson on Contract

BY ELY CULBERTSON,
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

A Rare and Beautiful Play

There is a form of play in bridge known as the Vienna Coup which consists of deliberately establishing a high card for an opponent, in order to make the situation possible. It is a beautiful because it discloses on the part of the player such precise knowledge gained from the cards he sees and from the cards he infers are held in the other hands not visible to him at the table. Recently, in a duplicate tournament I saw a hand of this type beautifully played and the use of the Vienna Coup was the only means for rectifying the slight overbidding of the North and South players which had turned a certain Slam into a doubtful Grand Slam.

The hand:

♠ K Q 10 9 7	♥ K 8 4	♦ K 5	♣ K 7 6 4 2
♠ J 10 9 7 2	♥ A 8 3	♦ A 6 3	♣ A 10
♠ K 8 8 3	♥ 7 6 4 2	♦ 7 6 4 2	♣ 7 6 4 2

The bidding:
(The figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
1(1)	Pass	1♠	Pass
2NT(2)	Pass	2♠	Pass
3NT(3)	Pass	3NT(4)	Pass

1—South's opening bid of one diamond appears ultra-conservative, but actually his partner must hold strength enough for a Take-out bid to make game at all possible.

2—If South was ultra-conservative at the beginning, this and his next bid certainly counterbalance this conservatism. Feeling that his first bid did not begin to show the strength of his hand and hoping that the combined hands might produce a Slam, South, who has no forcing situation left open to him, overbids game in notrump.

3—Either courageous or foolhardy, as I said, the choice was duplicate and the choice of notrump was in part dictated by the lure of the honor-coup, which is a vital factor in tournament play. The bid for six was based on the fact that South knew his hand complemented North's spade holding, and North's spade bid and subsequent diamond assist indicated that at least 9 tricks were available.

NEGRO ON TRIAL IN GORDY SLAYING

Claud McCann, negro, was placed on trial for the life before Judge G. H. Howard, in Fulton superior court, Thursday, and the case continued through the day, to be resumed this morning. He is charged with the murder of E. L. Gordy, a white grocer, on Haynes street, several months ago.

Gordy was slain during an attempted hold-up, and police subsequently arrested three negroes and they were jointly indicted for the murder. The other two are Fred Stevens and Hubert Brown, who Thursday indicated that they wanted to enter a plea of guilty. Assistant Solicitor John H. Hudson, prosecuting the case, stated that the pleas were taken but that sentence will not be passed until the close of the trial of McCann, as the two are to be used as witnesses.

This much at least is very clear: You'll not forget it taught by fear.

—Old Mother Nature.

Farmers Brown's Boy had so much to see that was new and so strange to him that he spent much of his time on long walks, trying to get acquainted with the little people in feathers and fur, whom he had never before seen, and usually Flip the Terrier was with him. Flip was quite as interested as his master and raced this way and that, poking his inquisitive little nose into bushes and under rocks and getting wildly excited every time he found something of interest.

Early one morning he and his master set out for a walk, and as usual, Flip raced far ahead. Suddenly turning, he came back even faster than he had gone ahead. Flailing his legs, the instant he reached his master he crept in close to the latter's heels and Farmers Brown's Boy saw that he was trembling.

A lizard with a long tail darted out and raced away. It couldn't be that that frightened Flip, for he had seen many lizards. He was clearly loved to chase them. Then Farmers Brown's Boy noticed that Flip kept rolling his eyes up to the sky. Farmers Brown looked up. High in the blue, blue sky, a dark form was sailing on broad wings. It was Talons the Eagle. Farmers Brown's Boy knew him at once and for a few minutes watched him, admiring his wonderful mastery of the air as he had often watched and admired King Eagle of the white head back home.

Then he looked down at Flip again with a puzzled frown. He had noticed that Flip's eyes were following every movement of the great bird high overhead, and he gradually came to him that it was of Talons that Flip was afraid. At first he wouldn't believe it because he couldn't. Why should Flip even notice Talons up there in the sky?

So he tied Flip to a stake and hid under a bush not far away. Poor Flip whimpered and whined and did his best to break away. It was clear that he was very much frightened. Then Farmers Brown's Boy glanced up to see what had become of Talons, and he was surprised to see Talons poised high above Flip as if about to swoop down on him. A moment later he started to do this very thing. With a yell Farmers Brown's Boy sprang out and ran toward poor Flip. Talons checked his swoop and shot off to one side, climbing rapidly, while Farmers Brown's Boy united Flip and settled him, taking him up in his arms. That Talons was the cause of his fear there was no longer any doubt, but why he should have been afraid was as much of a mystery as ever.

The next story: "Twitwhit Becomes Suspicious."

KEY INJUNCTION TO COME UP TODAY

Whether he shall pack his bags for a trip Saturday to New Orleans with the United States Veterans or whether he shall sit in his office at the city hall instead, will be the key problem this morning when he is to appear in Fulton superior court to show cause why an injunction seeking to restrain him from leaving the city save on providential or official business, shall not be granted.

The injunction was filed by Norman DeKraemer, a citizen and a taxpayer who cites a section of the city code that says the mayor shall spend three hours a day in his office except on Sunday, and shall not leave the city except on official business or providential matters. Three city officials were served with subpoenas duces tecum Thursday compelling them to produce records of Mayor Key's absences from Atlanta in court this morning.

These three were Luke Arnold, Key's secretary; E. Graham West, city comptroller; and J. Henson Tatum, clerk of council. Late Thursday afternoon Mr. Arnold stated that the records were in readiness and would be presented at the hearing.

HITCH-HIKER HELD IN ALABAMA ATTACK

HALEYVILLE, Ala., Sept. 3.—(AP) J. M. Dailey, federal loan collector, was in a hospital here today with serious wounds said to have been inflicted by a hitch-hiker who was arrested and placed in jail at Double Springs.

Dailey's attacker, who gave his name as Wilson, was reported by Double Springs officers to have confessed beating Dailey and robbing him of $70.

Vignettes.

Six years ago Ann was a carefree college girl. Now she is only twenty-five, young enough in years, but old in bitter experience. She had been married and divorced, and married a boy whom she adored. All went well for a while and then he began to go to pieces. At first she thought it was just a fling but he got worse and worse. The pleading of his parents, the prayers of his wife didn't save him. "He was joined to his idols" and they had to "let him alone." He has alienated his friends by treating them outrageously. She is afraid to have her friends come to the house for fear he will insult them. She has about concluded she says, "that nobody wants to associate with the wife of such a man."

Ann has succumbed to one of two great temptations. She must decide which it is and then she must pull herself up by her own will power. When a woman has humiliating circumstances in her life that throw her out of gear with the normal life around her, she is tempted to cut herself completely off from people whose lives are happy and normal. She feels that her sorrow unfit her to associate with those who are happy. If she yields to that temptation she invariably becomes super-sensitive. She broods on her sorrow and on the failure of people to understand and sympathize. When, in fact, they would be glad to come to her if she indicated by word or deed that they would be welcome.

The other is the temptation to entertain friends and acquaintances with tales of her husband's misdeeds. If she falls for that temptation, she forgets dignity and good taste and pours vituperation on him and hints for sympathy for herself. People begin to avoid her because they know that the same stale story will be poured into their ears. Ann can avoid these two temptations if she will find that her friends are always glad to receive her and eager to help her.

Bebe is a bride of a few months, living with her husband's people in her home. Bebe married a spoilt darling who has been petted and pampered and given his own way about everything in life. When she gets into an argument with him, her own husband, mind you, his mother steps in to take his part, as though he needed any help. She washes and cooks and cleans and does all the work of the home. When she complains that she is under weight and in need of rest her husband promises her that he will help her but he never does; if she reproaches him for failure he cusses and uses awful oaths. Bebe says: "I didn't expect married life to be a bed of roses but it is far worse than I dreamed it could be. I know there are other poor women who have married pampered children, so an opinion, a suggestion, a piece of advice will help many."

The world agrees that the bride and groom should establish a home of their own as quickly as possible after marriage. Life in the home with the older people's never ideal. But there is no use pretending that a separate residence will make a decent husband out of a petted, pampered son. The damage to his character is already done. Nothing, not even love, will change his disposition one iota. The woman who lives with him has to make up her mind to do his way and to do it without a murmur. That is the only thing that will insure a pleasant and peaceful relation between them. She may rail out against his trying to change him. She may rail out against his mother's rearing of him. She may cajole, she may implore, she may threaten and she may strike. She only makes herself sick and sore. The worm that spouts the chestnut enters at bloom time and there he remains. He comes out when the meat of the nut is all consumed.

Pershing, Beginning To Show Age, Reverses Roles With Reporters

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP)—General John J. Pershing came home from France again today, still a soldier from boot tip to hat crown, still carrying himself like the general he is, but finally beginning to show his 70 years.

He had been in France in his capacity as chairman of the battle monuments commission and said all the memorials probably would be completed by next summer.

More than 15 reporters were received by the general in his state room on the Leviathan as it docked. "Was Europe trembling with threats of another war?" he was asked.

Had he no desire to make a tour of Germany and meet some of the generals who fought against him? How about army reduction plans, the European political situation, economic problems abroad?

The man whose spectacular military maneuvers 14 years ago were chronicled in glaring headlines the world over might have given sensational replies.

But the shrewd, even-cautions military man smiled and shook his head. He didn't want to talk politics, war or economics. He wanted to chat with the reporters.

He wanted to know about unemployment in America, what had been happening on the sidewalks of New York while he had been away, what the United States was doing and thinking these days.

So General Pershing turned inches bust. Size 16 requires 3 yards 30-inch material for cuffs and vest and 3-8 yard of 30-inch contrasting for sleeves and collar.

Peacock School for Boys

1137 PEACHTREE ST. HEm. 3310

Dear Prof. Peacock:

I know you will be interested in the enclosed copy of The Hotchkiss Record, from which you will note that my son, Charles, one of your pupils, was on the first honor roll for the Fall Term, having made the second best marks in the entire school and the best marks of his class.

I know it will be gratifying to you to know that a pupil of the Peacock School has been able to so quickly accomplish a high standing in the Hotchkiss School. It speaks very highly of your instructions and methods.

Mrs. Adair joins me in best wishes to you and the Peacock School as we are both so highly satisfied with our son's success which is due, in a great measure, to your instruction.

Since writing you, I am pleased to say that Charles stood at the head of the whole school in the third quarter.

Sincerely yours,
CHAS. G. ADSIT.

INSTALLMENT V.

"Not yet, not yet," interrupted Rupert, his upper lip again twitching. "Barry and McKay are sufficient for a while. No necessity of calling up Lloyd. He'll be here soon, anyhow." Lloyd was Rupert's next younger brother. There were three brothers, Rupert, Lloyd and Hilary and one sister, Charlotte. There was loyalty among the Vale children, and affection, too, though seldom expressed, but there was also an undercurrent of competition. They hated to ask help of each other. In fact, each took a sort of gleaming pleasure in the others' difficulties. There was keen competition in regard to their children. If Fabia should fail to keep her contract tonight through some careless misadventure, it would be bitter gall to Rupert.

"But," he assured Lisa, "if Fabia is still missing by the time Lloyd arrives at eight-thirty, (for all the family, as well as some twenty-odd others were invited to the usher's dinner to make up a table of distinguished older people), I'll tell him and ask him to help. At least we can trust Lloyd to act in good faith in making his investigations, and I'm not so sure about Barry. Everything will be done, Lisa."

Fabia walked hard and fast once she reached the State road, after springing over the back wall. She did not know what direction she took, nor where she was going. She was aware, forward, at first, simply by the instinct of escape—an overwhelming desire to get away from the vision of her mother allowing herself to be kissed by Mr. Firth.

It was terribly shocking to her. What did it mean? Firth, her father's partner. A friend of the family? Why, they all liked Mr. Firth. He was often at the house. She herself knew him less intimately than June and the boys, because she had been away from home for six years, and he had been a member of her father's firm for only five. He had come a stranger to Boston, from somewhere in Canada she believed. Her mother had been kind to him and introduced him to her friends, with the result that Boston also had been kind to him. Fabia had once heard Mr. Firth say how much he owed her mother for launching a strange ship in such choppy waters. But her mother was always being kind to strangers, and increasing their desirability by her smile of approval. If she took a fancy to them, Mr. Firth was so exceedingly kind, she remembered now that her father had asked her mother to be kind to Mr. Firth and to make his new environment as attractive to him as possible. Her father also had been kind to Mr. Firth. They played golf together, cards, belonged to the same clubs, were companions as well as partners.

Fabia, until this moment, had never questioned her father's and mother's relationship. She had always taken it for granted that they were happy together. Grandmother Vale had often boasted, "All Vale's marry happily." The sudden suspicion that her mother and father might be like so many of the fathers and mothers she had read about in books or plays, or had seen on the screen, or heard discussed by the girls at school, was a shock to Fabia. Other families' scandals and incompatibilities had always seemed to her remote, not possibly within the range of her own experience. She had accepted blindly, without questioning, the Vale immunity. "We never indulge in scandal," Grandmother Vale's big voice had often boomed. "No in the forbidden feelings that lead to it." Wasn't that wise, and that white-caring hand of her mother's against the black coat indelibly photographed on her consciousness, a "forbidden feeling"? Or was she being frightened over something that could be explained? She felt so handicapped by her youth and inexperience. June was always saying she was too easily shocked. June was much more worldly-wise. If only there was one she could go to and ask. But she couldn't without exposing the person she loved most in the world, could she? Or, anyhow, not without exposing her suspicion of her. Always before she had gone to that person herself, with anything that puzzled or frightened her, and that person, simply, briefly, and without sentimentality, had disposed of her questions and fears. But she couldn't go to her mother about this.

Suddenly she stopped short. "Thad! Thad!" she called.

He was in the middle of the road,

directly in the path of the headlights of a car bearing down upon him. He heard her despairing voice, cleared the lights, and came running triumphantly toward her. But just in time to cross the path of another car, coming from the opposite direction. He almost cleared that too.

Fabia stood motionless, with a hand to her mouth, waiting for the moment of relief when Thad would leap from the dark of the rear of the car, as many times before, safe and alive and joyous.

But instead, she saw a little round bundle, lying very quiet and still, by the side of the road. She observed that the car slowed down, came almost to a standstill, and then the driver changed his mind evidently, and went on unconcerned. "Four two one, one eight three." Not an easy number to remember.

She leaned down over Thad. He wasn't dead! His eyes were open. And there were no cuts or bruises that she could see in the dim light. She lifted him very tenderly. Oh! blood from his mouth! Oh, Thad! He was hurt inside! She mustn't walk with him. It would jar him too much. There were no houses for at least a quarter of a mile, for she recognized now where she was. Oh, what a brute, indeed, to leave her alone like this! "Four two one, one eight three."

Holding Thad in her arms, she walked out in the middle of the broad macadam road and stepped directly in the path of the next car that appeared. But the car swerved away from her. Two cars passed her like that. It was the third, this time also, that was the good Samaritan.

"Will you take me to the square please? My dog's been run over."

There was a man alone in the car. He swung open the door and Fabia got into the upholstered seat beside him.

"Drive very carefully, please," she said, nervously glancing at him, and holding Thad in her arms as if he were a baby, "and take me to the nearest veterinary."

"I don't know of any vet," the man replied gruffly. "Run up to the square, then, where there is a policeman and we'll ask."

"I'll have to drop you at the square; I've got an important date in Pawtucket at 8:30."

"All right. That will do. Drive carefully. I'm awfully afraid my dog is dreadfully hurt. The man who ran over him didn't stop, but I've got his number. Four two one, one eight three. How was she to remember it? Four two—forty-two—her mother's age, followed by two ones, then Grandmother Vale's age. It wouldn't slip from her now.

The traffic policeman didn't know of any veterinary in the vicinity. "But there's a regular dog just across the square, under that electric light. He'll probably be able to tell you what happened to your dog, Miss."

"He ought to be sent to prison. I'd tell you about it, but I must see to Thad first."

"Will you take me over to the doctor's, please?" This last Fabia addressed to the man in the seat beside her, for she hadn't allowed him to drop her and her precious burden yet.

The doctor's doorway was lighted from within. Fabia rang the bell. It was answered by a large-sized, comfortable-looking woman who wore glasses.

"Is the doctor in?"

"No, but I expect him soon," the woman replied, trying to make out if it was a baby the disheveled girl at the door held in her arms.

"I'll come in and wait, then. My dog's been run over."

"But the doctor isn't a veterinary."

"I know it. But he can tell me how badly my dog is hurt, can't he? And stop this bleeding."

"He doesn't take care of dogs. I think you'd better go to a man who does."

"Is there one near?"

"I don't know of any. But—"

"I'll come in and wait, then, please."

Young Howell Meets Veteran Ouimet in Amateur Semi-Finals; Charlie Black, Defending Champion, Beaten in City Golf Meet

BREAK of the DAY
By Ralph McGill

So we went to Athens, Ga. There was a two-car parade going to the coming out party given Mr. Ted Twomey, the new line coach at Georgia, and Weems Baskin, the new freshman football and varsity track coach.

In the two-car caravan en route to Athens were Mr. Dillon Graham, of the estimable A. P. (Associated Press to you), Mr. Morgan Blake and Old Timer, of the Journal; Mr. Ed Danforth, of the Georgian, and your correspondent. It has always been a question with me whether the goings-on of sports writers were of any interest to old John Public. But then we were going to a debut party and there is no reason why it shouldn't be told.

There was golf in the afternoon following a luncheon at which the blushing debutants were introduced. Strictly speaking Weems Baskin is no debutant, having been around at Auburn for some time and in the public prints often, he being a hurder of the championship class.

Twomey is set up like one of the modern heavy-weight wrestlers. Not bulky but plenty of him. He is the fellow who played tackle with Jack Cannon at Notre Dame in 1929. I told him Cannon had said that had it not been for him (Twomey) he (Cannon) and isn't the English language funny? would not have made all-American.

"Shucks," said Twomey. "Don't believe Jack. Everyone knows why he was all-American. He was out there showing why. I don't believe I ever saw a lineman as fast as he."

As I said there was golf in the afternoon. Harry Mehre, head coach, and your correspondent wrecked Twomey and Rex Enright, who is almost a debutant himself, 6 and 5. Once I wished I had a jockey cap as I was sort of riding along on Harry Mehre's golf game. Blake and Bill White, baseball coach, finished all square with H. J. Stegeman and Ed Danforth. Mayor Lon Dudley, of Athens, and Charley Martin, of the athletic office, defeated Dillon Graham and Weems Baskin.

"Here, here," said Rex Enright, when he heard that score, "didn't I hear Harry Mehre say not to beat any of these newspaper men as it looked like a tough season and he wanted them all in a good humor?"

This was all smoothed over and we went in to a delightful dinner at the Georgian hotel. It disappeared quickly—that dinner. The Athens golf course is a beautiful one and a test for golf and legs.

And then we all rode home along roads that led through sweet smelling corn (out in the field, you) and trees that were rustling in a fall wind.

It was an awfully nice party.

YALE THE FIRST OBJECTIVE.

Football, of course, is just around the corner. Practice begins at all the conference schools Monday.

And Yale is the big objective at Georgia. The V. P. I. game, on October 3, is a real test. But Yale, on October 10 in the bowl at New Haven, is the big objective. The Bulldogs have won from Yale three times in the past four years. The series of games is to be interrupted after this fall and naturally the Georgians would like to close out with another victory to make it three straight.

"We will set to work for Yale," said Harry Mehre. "After that we will have to set our sights as best we may. We will have several objectives. We want to win all our games if we can. It looks impossible with such a schedule. Yale is the first big one. After that we will see what we'll do."

Georgia has a strong coaching staff for the heavy going that is ahead. Chick Shiver, who is still playing baseball, will coach the ends. Twomey will handle the tackles and guards and Enright the backs. Mehre will have the head coach duties, which are ample. "I guess I'll work with the centers," he said with a grin. And there is plenty of work to be done there with a sub back from 1930 and a sophomore battling the sub for the place.

NOTRE DAME STILL LOOKS GOOD.

Twomey, who finished at Notre Dame in 1929 with the great team of that year, sees another good team at South Bend this fall.

"Hunk Anderson is a good man," said Twomey. "He returns four good tackles and a veteran line. The backfield is also good. His big problem will be the quarterback. I like Emmett Murphy, maybe because he comes from Duluth, my home town."

"Murphy is perhaps a little too well liked by the boys. You know, a good quarterback has to be a bit cocky and not too popular with the boys."

Twomey and Mehre both amplified this statement which sounded a bit unusual.

"The quarterback is the boss," said Mehre. "He must be a driver. I imagine he must be like a tough top sergeant in the army. The boys may dislike him at times because he gives orders but they respect him and admire him. But he can't be soft and easy with them. He's got to direct and control ten men."

"Yes," said Twomey, "a driver is the best man, a cocky fellow who keeps the spurs on."

Which may be something to think on this fall while watching the teams in action.

JUST SUPPOSING.

Howard Jones' recent statement that the punt would some day be eliminated from football, came up during the table talk following the dinner.

"I guess he hasn't got a good kicker this year and wishes the punt was eliminated," said Mehre.

Mehre, incidentally, would like to see the kick-off eliminated. He doesn't think it will be because it is perhaps the big thrill of the game, the traditional big moment.

"I would like it eliminated because it causes about two-thirds of the injuries in college football," said Mehre. "You see," added Stegeman, "the men are all keyed up, they have a long run which gives them added momentum and there is more chance for injury."

HOWELL WINS, MEETS OUIMET IN U.S. AMATEUR

McCarthy and Westland Others in Semi-Finals at Beverly Club.

By George Kirksey.

BEVERLY COUNTRY CLUB, CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 3.—(UP)—Francis Ouimet, who was the Boston schoolboy wonder, was back in 1913 when he defeated Harry Vardon and Edward Ray, British professionals, in the never-to-be-forgotten play-off for the national open title, was the last of the "old guard" remaining in the national amateur golf championship after today's 36-hole quarter-finals had narrowed the survivors to four. Winner of the national amateur title in 1914 and runner-up to Chick Evans Jr., Chicago, in 1920, Ouimet tonight once more was on the threshold of the amateur crown relinquished by Bobby Jones.

Ouimet temporarily halted the march of the young brigade in the present contest by defeating McCarthy, 2 and 1, in the most decisive victory of the day over Paul Jackson, 21, Kansas City, Mo., 7 and 6.

THOSE IN RUNNING.

Reaching the semi-finals with Ouimet were Billy Howell, of Richmond, Va.; Jack Westland, of Chicago, and Maurice J. McCarthy, New York youngster.

In tomorrow's 36-hole semi-finals, Ouimet, oldest player in the tournament, will meet Howell, the youngest, and Westland will play McCarthy.

Three of the four quarter-finalists have qualified for the national amateur championship previously, but only Ouimet ever has advanced so far as the semi-finals prior to today. McCarthy, who is 23, has qualified several times, but never before has he gotten past the quarter-finals. Westland, 26, qualified in 1928, but was eliminated in the first round.

Ouimet and McCarthy had little trouble gaining the semi-finals, defeating all the way in their matches. McCarthy blazed away with the best golf of the day on his morning round to finish the first round on an 18-hole course, Culver City, Cal., and wind up with a 6-and-5 victory.

SECOND LOW ROUND.

McCarthy's 71 in the morning is the second time during the tournament any player has equalled or lowered par figures. Johnny Lehman, Chicago, shot a 70 in the second day's qualifying round.

Fate played a major role in young Billy Howell's victory over Westland in the morning round. 21, on Howell, but had an attack of indigestion after eating lunch and was unable to get off as scheduled at 2 p. m.

After an hour's rest, Bolstad gamely resumed the match in the afternoon, but he was badly off his game and unable to hold his lead. Howell's margin of victory was 3 and 2.

The most exciting match of the day was between Westland, who has proved himself perhaps the coolest player in the tournament under fire, and Arthur (Ducky) Yates, Rochester, N. Y., who tied for the medal with Johnny Lehman and Charley Seaver, Los Angeles.

Westland sank a 3-foot putt on the 36th green to win the match 1 up in a drizzling rain, which had started while they were playing the final hole.

SQUARE SIX TIMES.

Six times, three in the morning round and three in the afternoon round, the Westland-Yates match was all square at the 18th hole. Yates either player made more than 2 up. Yates finished the first nine in the morning 1 up, but Westland squared the match with a par 4 on the 13th and went 1 up by winning the 15th with a par 4. The 268-pound Yates evened it by winning the 17th with a par 3, but finished 1 down when he took a six, one over par on the 18th.

Each won two holes going out in the afternoon and Westland held his 1-up lead rounding the turn. Yates missed a 2-foot putt for a par 5 on the 29th and halved the hole. Westland had dropped a 6-foot putt on the 31st for a birdie 3. Yates missed one the same length to let the Chicagoan pull ahead.

Yates dove into the rough on the right with his tee shot on the 36th and pulled his second into the rough on the left, while Westland's was straight down the fairway. Westland was on the green in three, and Yates took a 4. Westland's approach putt was short, but he sank his next to win the hole and match.

After finishing the morning round 2 down to Bolstad, young Howell won five of the first seven holes going out in the afternoon and wrestled the lead from his opponent, who was obviously in distress from his stomach trouble. Howell, who hits a long ball on every shot with a little hook on both wood and iron, squared the match on the 22d hole when Bolstad was trapped and then won the next three holes in succession to take a commanding lead. Bolstad won the 26th and 28th, but found his physical handicap much for him and was eliminated on the 32d hole.

SIX DOWN.

Jackson won only one hole from Ouimet in the morning and was 6 down at the end of 18 holes. Followed by the largest gallery in the tournament, Jackson was nearly played raggedly before the big crowd. Ouimet continued his steady play in the afternoon and when he reached the turn Jackson found himself 8 down and 9 to play. Jackson won his fourth hole of the match when Ouimet missed a 5-foot putt on the 28th, prolonging the match two more holes.

VIOLETS READY.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(UP)—New York University's football practice season will start next Tuesday, it was announced today. Team candidates will report to Coach Chick Mehan at Farmingdale, N. Y., on that day.

YATES, MOORE AGAIN VICTORS AT DRUID HILLS

Belser Beats Tommy Barnes; Quarter and Semi-Finals Slated Today.

By Roy White.

Al Florio's 4-3 victory over Charlie Black Jr., defending champion, and Dana Belser's 19-hole win over Tommy Barnes, 18-hole winner of the 17th annual Atlanta amateur golf championship being played on the Druid Hills course.

Other favorites remained in the running with easy victories. Charlie Yates Jr., East Lake star and Georgia amateur champion, defeated the veteran Chick Ridley, 4-2. Berrien Moore Jr., runner-up last year, beat Willie Smith, 7-5. Pete Barnes, Junior, member of Commencement, eliminated a fellow West End player, Johnny Adamson, 7-6.

Julius Hughes, Druid Hills champion, beat Tully Walsh, 4-3. Dick Garlington and Lyman Hunter eliminated Robin Adair and Dan Sage Jr., respectively, each match being 8-7.

Quarter and semi-finals in the tournament will be played today with the morning round in the championship flight scheduled to start at 9:30 o'clock. The semi-final rounds will start around 2 o'clock.

With the elimination of Ridley, Adair and Black, the field now includes only one veteran, Dana Belser.

The other seven golfers have risen to the top-rank during the last few years.

There should be plenty of action today, especially in the semi-finals during the afternoon. It is probably the fastest city amateur in Atlanta's history.

In the quarter-finals Florio meets Moore, Barnes plays Garlington, Yates meets Hunter, and Hughes plays Belser. Particular interest will be centered about the Yates-Hunter match.

ONE CLOSE MATCH.

Except for the Barnes-Belser match, which was the second extra-hole affair for Belser, there was little excitement for the gallery to witness. The big crowd followed the steady play to the 15th green and then picked up the Barnes-Belser scrap and three holes in the lead at 15th. Belser made a comeback to win the 16th and 18th, squaring the match.

On the extra hole, Barnes out-drove Belser. Belser's second was in the rough to the left of the green, while Barnes topped the second. Belser chipped just short of the pin, while Barnes overran the cup on his putt. Belser missed his putt and stymied Barnes, and the match was a hole as his second putt knocked Belser's ball into the cup.

HUNTER'S PLAY.

Lyman Hunter had an spectacular round of 34, two under par, and was 9 up on Dan Sage Jr. at the turn. He added another hole on the 17th to another series of par holes. Garlington also had a great nine-hole round that ruined Robin Adair's chances to recover for the loss of Dana Belser.

Berrien Moore Jr. had one of his best rounds to eliminate Willie Smith, a fine mid-major player. Hughes and Barnes continued their steady play to remain in the running for the title.

Chick Ridley, the veteran, attempted to "iron out" Yates, the Georgia champion, but could not cope with the long, accurate driving of the youngster. Ridley was forced to desert his iron and club on the 17th hole as his second putt knocked Belser's ball into the cup.

Curley Gives Up Hope. Cochet Will Definitely Remain Amateur.

PARIS, Sept. 3.—(UP)—Jack Curley, American sports promoter, sailed for home today without a contract binding Henri Cochet to professional tennis. Final play will be held tomorrow.

By virtue of taking all three matches on the tour of Young Sam, England scored four points and cannot be overtaken. France has won two points and the United States none.

Today's postponement necessitated a change in the schedule for tomorrow. Johnny Doeg, national champion, who was to have played George P. Hughes, England, has an engagement in New York tomorrow and his place will be taken by Keith Gledhill, of Stanford University, the intercollegiate champion.

Wines will replace Doeg as a partner to George Lott in the doubles match with Frederick J. Perry and Hughes, of England.

COACH PROMOTED.

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 3.—(UP)—Harry Rabenhorst, 1930 Louisiana State University freshman football coach, has been promoted to the varsity squad training staff and Ray Mobley, alumni secretary, has been appointed coach of the first year team. Russ Cogen, athletic director, announced today.

Atlanta Golfers Play at Highlands

Berrien Moore Jr., young East Lake star, and Julius Hughes, Druid Hills Club champion, for the past three years, and were finalists today in the annual city tournament at Druid Hills, will play Ernie Ball and Leslie Kallet, East Lake assistant professionals, in an exhibition match Monday on the Highlands Estate Club course at Highlands, N. C., and will be a climax to the summer season at the mountain resort.

A few weeks ago Bobby Jones, retired champion, and Scott Hudson Jr. defeated Ernie Ball and Charlie Yates Jr. in a benefit match for the Scott Hudson Library at the Highlands club.

McCarthy and Westland Others in Semi-Finals at Beverly Club.

By George Kirksey.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(UP)—Leon See, who apparently should have been a stage comedian rather than a fight manager, furnished the boxing world with the choicest guffaw of the season today with the announcement that he intends to claim the world's heavyweight championship for Primo Carnera.

According to See, Primo, who has shown no attributes of a fighter other than a dirty pair of trunks, flat feet and a square of "muscle men" backers, will become champion by default when Max Schmeling fails to fulfill his contract to meet Primo in a title bout on September 17.

See, a typical comedian's "Dead Pan Stogie," appeared astonished at the laughter which greeted his formal announcement to New York sports writers today and maintained that he could see no cause for mirth in the suggestion that Carnera, whose only claim to fame is an even break with third-rate Jimmy Maloney and a string of questionable knockout triumphs over "rank" opponents, should be recognized as champion.

NOT SO FUNNY.

What is more, even the boxing writers, after recovering from their original astonishment, were ready to admit that See's announcement might not be as funny as it sounds. For See—backed by the most daring mob of "muscle men" which ever has invaded boxing—has accomplished just about everything he has started out to accomplish with Carnera. Even though it is doubtful that Carnera could defeat fifth-rate opponents if his bouts were contested honestly, he has managed to keep Primo in the big money and among the ranks of title contenders.

While Jack Sharkey, Tommy Loughran, Mickey Walker, Ernie Schaaf and many other more worthy fighters were clamoring for the chance to meet Schmeling, Carnera, actually was signed for a championship bout. Probably even See realized that Schmeling had no intention of fulfilling the contract when it was made—despite Max's declaration that he would have gone through with the bout but for an eye injury—but the contract has paved the way for Carnera to claim the title and he will make the most of this opportunity.

LIKE THE REST.

Of course, no one will take Carnera's claim seriously, any more than they do the claims of Jack Sharkey, recognized in New York as "defending champion," or of Mickey Walker, who held Sharkey to a draw, but a little title See will capitalize the claim for all it is worth.

See's announcement of plans was in the form of a telegram to the National Boxing Association, in which he notified the association that Primo in Crispin City was interrupted by rain today and his place will be taken in event Schmeling fails to go through with the contracted bout, which was approved by the N. B. A.

Schaaf, Roberti Fight Date Changed.

BOSTON, Sept. 3.—(UP)—Ernie Schaaf, Boston heavyweight, and Roberto Roberti, Italian giant, will meet here a week from tonight instead of September 11, as originally scheduled. Promoter Eddie Mack, of the Argonne Club, Boston, announced today.

Mack explained the date originally set was a Hebrew holiday.

Petrels Look Good as They Settle Down to Hard Practice

COACH 'ROBBY' WELL PLEASED AFTER WORKOUT

Sypert Shines on Receiving End of Passing on Third Day.

By Jack Troy.

Coach Harry Robertson is getting down to cases out at Oglethorpe University.

Like the king of old who did so much ordering, Coach Robertson yesterday sent his Petrel football charges through a full-sized workout on their third day out, calling for, among other things, clipping practice, form tackling with linebacks and an intensive signal drill.

And what is more, he discovered to his satisfaction that the husky youngsters were not utterly fagged when he called a cessation to activities. They had enough surplus energy to leave the field in a brisk run.

CHURCH TRAINER.

Appointment of Al Church, veteran tackle who graduated last spring, as trainer of the squad was made yesterday. It was undecided Wednesday as to whether he would be freshman coach or trainer. Coach Robertson making his decision when word was received that Hayward Clements, trainer last year, would not return.

Aside from the splendid physical condition of the squad, the brightest part of yesterday's workout was the spectacular pass receiving of Clay (Lefty) Sypert, regular halfback last season.

Sypert cut a big figure in several Petrel victories last year with his consistent pass-catching, notably in the Manhattan, Loyola and Furman games. He was in old-time form yesterday and gladdened the hearts of those looking on.

RELAXATION.

Relaxation was the theme of the afternoon drill.

"Relax, turn only your head," Robertson would shout when a candidate turned half or all the way around to catch a pass. "Should have had it," anything you touch," he admonished from time to time. "Run with your legs, relax your arms."

The whole team lined up single file for several rounds of shadow clipping, that is, showing their bodies across the newly-mown field of imagination men. Then they had their first form-tackling session with linebacks, followed by copious signal practice.

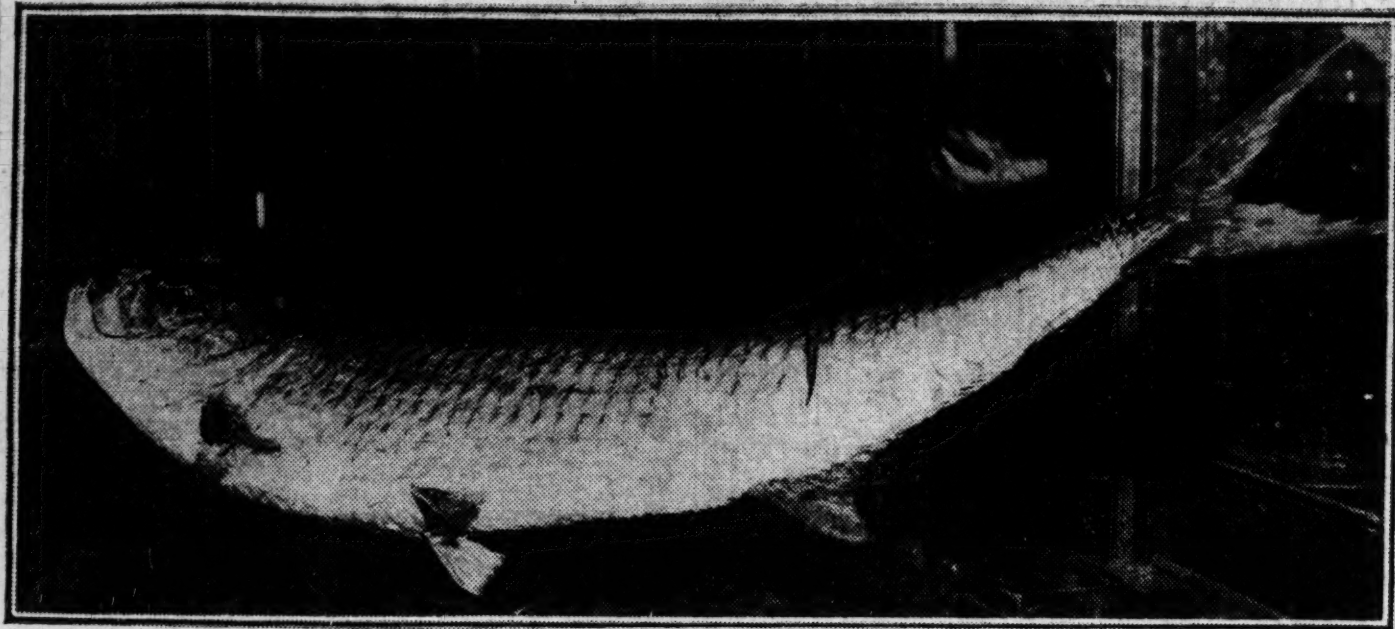

Again Coach Robertson conducted an endless experiment with regard to shifting players from one position to another, making it folly to attempt a guess as to which players he favors for first-string consideration.

Coach Robertson seemed well pleased after the workout.

SEEKS TURF CROWN.

LONDON, Sept. 3.—(P.)—J. A. Dewar's Cameronian, England's ranking three-year-old, will attempt to annex the elusive mythical triple turf crown when he starts in the St. Leger handicap at Doncaster Wednesday, September 9. Cameronian won the classic two thousand guineas at Newmarket in the spring and then galloped home winner of the derby at Epsom in June. The St. Leger completes the trio of the greatest three-year-old races of the English turf.

Here's a Big One That Didn't Get Away.

Bill Stoddard, well-known business man and sportsman of Atlanta, doesn't confine all his play to racing pigeons. Some of his fishing trophies have just been mounted and placed on exhibition at his place of business. The one shown above is just three of the big ones on display. Stoddard caught three of them during the summer on a fishing trip to Fort Myers.

The largest one weighed 178 pounds and required an hour and 55 minutes to weigh. Another, weighing 112 pounds, was pulled in within 35 minutes, and still another weighing 80 pounds was landed in 20 minutes. Forrest Armstrong, friend of Stoddard's, caught three almost as large on the same trip.

MORE DRIVERS SIGN FOR RACES

Motor-Boats and Cars To Speed in Free Program Monday.

Two motor-boat pilots and another automobile race driver Thursday entered the free racing program scheduled for Lakewood park Monday afternoon in the feature of a Labor Day celebration at the park.

Louis Trotter and Troy Winn, piloting a "checkerboard" and a "new 50," speedboats, respectively, filled their entries Thursday along with that of Claude Smith, received several days ago.

Harley Taylor is the latest addition to the automobile racing program for the two-mile track.

Trotter recently tied the world's outboard motor record for eight miles. Smith is the south's free-for-all motor boat champion and is leading southern pilots in points toward a national championship.

The entire racing program of six events, in addition to fourteen novelty affairs, will be free to the public.

A mammoth fireworks program will be presented at 8:30 o'clock across the lake from the grandstand. It also will be free.

NEW RECORD.

LEIPZIG, Germany, Sept. 3.—(P.)—Frau Herta Wunder established a new women's world record for the 400-meter breast-stroke swim tonight when she covered the distance in 6 minutes 42.4 seconds. The old record was 6:45.6, held by Marie Baron, of Holland.

Bet You Haven't Heard The Remarkable Story Of Buck Newsom's Ride

By Jimmy Jones.

YOU'VE read of Arthur Thayer's Casey and Ring Lardner's inimitable Jack Keefe. And you no doubt cracked your sides at the antics of Elmer the Great. This is going to be a yarn about baseball's Been Hur—a big right-handed pitcher with an itching accelerator foot. They call him the Bugs Raymond of the South.

There was an item in the Monday papers about a foot race that involved Red Barron and Benny Rothstein of the Crackers and Pitcher Newsom and Outfielder French, of Little Rock, Sunday. The reading of it brought up a whole slew of memories about this Newsom and among them is one of a wild auto race at midnight, a terrific impact and ball players picking themselves out of a corn field.

Buck Newsom always had a penchant for doing things a pitcher wasn't supposed to do. It was not surprising that he participated in the foot race although the news item failed to mention where he finished. During ball games he insists on running for players who are disabled and he has a weakness for trying to steal home.

Tomposhere still perks up at the story of Buck Newsom's midnight ride that ended in the corn field. It's a good thing for democracy that Paul Revere's didn't end that way for if it had you and I might still be drinking pink tea and playing innocuous British games. But Buck Newsom was a John Henry and Major Hoople rolled into one and when he got behind that steering wheel, traffic opened up and let Buck Newsom through.

It happened in 1929 while old Tom Rogers, the Gallatin Gunner, was trying to make a pitcher of Buck down at Macon, Newsom, a rangy, rawboned sharpshooter from the sand hills of South Carolina, had a fast ball and a yearning for fast automobiles.

Soon after the season began, Newsom became prosperous and bought himself a highly-gearred Ford roadster. Buck had an idea that he could make the jumps around the league with more alacrity and a scheme dawned in his mind that he would carry some of the other players and save Pullman fare.

TWO SUCKERS.

After much persuasion, Newsom inveigled two fellow pitchers, John Krider and Phil Gullivan, now with Hartford, to go along on the maiden voyage. Bright and early they started their shovels off at the rate of 70 plus, scattering live stock and starting natives along the countryside.

Newsom was at the wheel and his imagination grew with the velocity of the machine. After some length of time spent in deftly caroming around curves on two wheels and darting through loopholes in traffic, who should stalk right into Buck Newsom's memory but old Barney Oldfield himself, along with his deeds of daring. Why am I pitching baseball when I can drive like this, the big right-hander ruminated.

And Buck Newsom stepped on the gas while his two passengers clung on until their knuckles whitened and yowled, among other things, that they would catch a train at the next station.

WATCH OUT, NOW.

Things rocked along well enough for a time, and perhaps would have continued to do so, had not the rear end of a huge eight-cylinder machine loomed in the distance that night along about 11 p.

The sight of it made Buck Newsom's eyes glisten. Just like John Paul Jones spying a British frigate at sea. He licked his lips and stepped down on the accelerator.

"I will pass that Boon," said Buck Newsom firmly, "and he'll never know what passed him."

His two companions ducked their heads and murmured a prayer for the first time in years. The Newsom chariot roared like a plane as it picked up momentum.

ZIP! WHAM!

He sped on and passed the eight-cylinder baby that had loomed in the road. But alas, Ben Hur Buck had not reckoned with the deviations of a Georgia road. His puddle jumper hit one of those abrupt curves that we read about in the death notices.

The chariot bucked twice and leaped high into the air like a gored broncho. Ben Hur Newsom.

SINCLAIR SELLS THOROUGHBREDS

Twenty-Five Horses Go at Saratoga as Stable Is Retired.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Sept. 3.—(P.)—The famous white and green capped silks of Harry F. Sinclair's Rancocas stable were retired from the turf today as 25 thoroughbreds, representing the stable's horses in training, were sold in the Saratoga race course paddock.

The 25 horses, many of which have carried the popular Sinclair colors to stake victories, sold for a total of $81,300—an average of $3,252 per head.

The top price was given for the 2-year-old Defier, a son of Bud Lerer, for which Frank Seremba paid $12,600. Defier is eligible for the Hopeful stakes Saturday, a factor which probably accounted for the amount paid.

Ladana, the 3-year-old filly which recently was poisoned prior to a race at the local tracks and which resulted in a barring of Rancocas horses from overnight events, went to Victor Emmanuel's Dorwood stable for $9,500.

The second highest price of the sale, $5,700, Caplin for $5,800 and Arab for $5,000. Movris went to Milo Shields while J. H. (Bud) Stoller, trainer for the Sagamore stable, purchased Caplin. Arab was bid in by F. C. Crenshaw.

The sale ended the active participation of one of the most famous and colorful racing establishments in turf history. For three years—1921-22—the stable ruled the turf, gaining international fame under the guidance of the late Sam Hildreth, Sinclair's trainer for many years.

Although Sinclair disposed of all of his horses in training today, it is expected he will be back next year with a new crop of 2-year-olds. At the Rancocas farm near Westtown, N. J., the millionaire oilman has over 100 mares, yearlings and weanlings in addition to the stud from which to rebuild his stable. Standing at the head of the stud are such famous sires as Zev, Lucille and Bud Lerer.

REESE WINS WAY TO SEMI-FINALS OF STATE MEET

Other Men's Tilts Rained Out; Boynton Beats Junior Opponent.

MACON, Ga., Sept. 3.—(P.)—Rain early this afternoon drenched the Baconfield tennis courts and caused postponement until Friday morning of three matches in the quarter-finals of the men's singles and all matches in the quarter-finals of the men's doubles in the Georgia tennis tournament.

Billy Reese, Atlanta, seeded No. 2, was the only quarter-finalist in the men's singles who played his match, defeating Robert Little, of Tusculum, 6-2, 6-2.

Arthur Hendrix, of Lakeland, top ranking player, George Boynton, Atlanta, seeded No. 4, and Rex Godwin, Anniston, unseeded, advanced to the semi-final of the junior singles this morning. Hendrix defeated Tom Tumin, Atlanta, seeded No. 6, 6-1, 6-2. Boynton downed Watson, Rome, seeded No. 7, 6-0, 6-0.

ATLANTAN LOSERS.

Jack Morris, Atlanta, was beaten by Boulware, 6-2, 6-4. Godwin eliminated Pierre Howard, Decatur, seeded No. 5, 6-2, 3-6, 6-1. The Godwin Howard match was one of the best thus far seen in the tournament.

In the junior doubles this morning, Boynton and Hendrix won from Gallo and Brown by default; Carlson and Ezell trounced Kingston and Keller, 9-7, 7-5; Boulware and Tumin eliminated T. Hendrix and Reed by default; and Williamson and Brewer trounced Elrod and Mount by default.

Beggs and Wiggins, Macon's hopes in the boys' doubles, defeated Kingston and Bratton, Atlanta, 6-0, 7-5. Watkins and Ragdale defeated Hammond and Sullivan, 8-6, 6-2 in the only other match played today.

MEN'S MATCHES.

Tomorrow morning the three men's singles quarter-final matches unplayed will be held. Wilmer Hines, Columbia, seeded No. 1, will meet Harley Shuford, Hickory, N. C.; Arthur Hendrix, Lakeland, seeded No. 5, will encounter Jack Simpson, Atlanta, seeded No. 3, and Jimmy Halverstadt, Atlanta, seeded No. 4, will encounter Ike Minor, Atlanta.

Quarter-finals in the men's doubles also will be played tomorrow morning, starting at 10:30 o'clock.

Tomorrow afternoon the semi-finals of all the events will be held.

Coaches to Greet G. M. C. Squad Today

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Sept. 3.—Coaches Bobby Hooks and "Slap" Rents will meet the G. M. C. grid candidates for the first workout of the season Friday morning. About 40 candidates reported today. THE SPORT-LIGHT

BEVERLY GOLF CLUB, CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—This amateur championship is still a study in tradition.

On the top list, with only four men left, there is Francis Ouimet, of Boston, the kid who lifted golf from a rich man's game to a popular sport 18 years ago when he put through the greatest golf achievement of all time by stepping out as a 19-year-old in the rain at Brookline and beating the best ball of Harry Vardon and Ted Ray, two of the immortals of the ancient game.

That was the great dramatic thrust that called the attention of thousands of kids to this game, and these thousands in turn soon grew into millions.

The same Francis Ouimet is not only one of the four left in this championship, but he is playing the brand of golf that should be hard to beat.

After besting young Paul Jackson by 7 and 6 today, Ouimet steps into more tradition. As the oldest qualifier in the field, Ouimet tomorrow will meet Billy Howell, of Richmond, Va., the youngest entry, but a 19 years old. And it might be mentioned again that Billy Howell also carries his share of tradition.

As the Old Dominion champion, who best Lester Bolstad today, young Howell is still storming the northern hills to this game, and these thousands in turn soon grew into millions.

The same Francis Ouimet is not only one of the four left in this championship, but he is playing the brand of golf that should be hard to beat.

After besting young Paul Jackson by 7 and 6 today, Ouimet steps into more tradition. As the oldest qualifier in the field, Ouimet tomorrow will meet Billy Howell, of Richmond, Va., the youngest entry, but a 19 years old. And it might be mentioned again that Billy Howell also carries his share of tradition.

Howell is young and slender and blond and this is not only his first championship but the first time he has ever been further north than Baltimore. He is a great kid and he admitted to me that he never expected to qualify, but that he wanted experience. When I suggested to him that he would like to let them know that a Virginian was still on the march, whatever happened.

In the other bracket there should be a great battle between Maurice McCarthy, of New York, and Jack Westcott, of Chicago. McCarthy, the broad-shouldered, easy-going, tousle-headed entry from Georgetown University, played the best golf of the day Wednesday, and today, among the last eight, he was still hitting the ball better than any one left. He was around in 71 against Fay Coleman, of Los Angeles, with that same slashing, carefree swing that is such a pleasure to watch. McCarthy beat Coleman 6 and 5, taking life easy on the last 18.

McCarthy is the young entry who came near stopping Bobby Jones at Minikahda in 1928. He had Bobby grumpy and almost out until the finish. Last year he broke all records by beating George Von Elm in a match in Merion that went 10 extra holes.

Maurice has a fine match play disposition. He is a great competitor in any game. And he will be hard to beat.

WRESTLING CARD TUESDAY NIGHT CITY'S GREATEST

Sauer Meets Roebuck, Jones Tackles O'Shocker at Spiller's.

Pete Sauer (Ray Steele to many) will wrestle Tiny Roebuck, and Pat O'Shocker will meet Paul Jones next Tuesday night at Spiller's field in what will be the greatest wrestling card ever staged in Atlanta.

Never before have so many stars and favorites been gathered on one card in Atlanta. The Pete Sauer-Roebuck match is one that the fans would go for in a big way. When the O'Shocker-Jones match was added to it the card was made into a real feature.

Sauer, who is rated next to Jim London in the wrestling game, has never met a man as tough as Roebuck in Atlanta. Sauer will be a slight favorite but fans know they will see a real contest. Roebuck is one of the men rated as a potential champion.

HIS REAL NAME.

Sauer, known in the east as Ray Steele, is working under his real name of Sauer. He took the other because his parents who lived in San Francisco, objected to wrestling as a profession for him. For a time he was the "Masked Marvel." Later he was Steele and now he appears as Sauer. Sauer, "the bronze man," is really a great athlete. His career has never had a question mark in it. The fans know him as they do others on the card, as a real grappler.

Seeing him in action against the gigantic Cherokee Indian, Tiny Roebuck, 220 pounds of brawn, will be one of the season's big thrills.

ANOTHER THRILLER.

The O'Shocker-Jones match will be another thriller. O'Shocker has defeated Steinborn and Fox in Atlanta. His match with Jones was put, him in against one of the toughest men he has yet faced.

Just how local matchmakers could land this card for Atlanta is something of a mystery. Steele is in constant demand in the east. And O'Shocker and the others are also great cards elsewhere. Getting them all together on one program was a great piece of work. Charley Renthrop accomplished it. Renthrop is subbing here for Henry Weber, who will return to this country from Europe September 10. He will arrive in Atlanta a day or so later.

Tickets to the super card of next Tuesday will go on at regular prices. Ladies will still be admitted to any seat in the stands for $1.

BOUT AGAIN HALTED.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 3.—(P.)—The Midges Wolgast-Happy Aetherton 10-round non-title flyweight, twice postponed on account of rain, tonight was shifted to Tuesday, September 8. A rainstorm drenched the arena late today.

The spirit of John B. Stetson carries on... that why, today, your Stetson costs only $7!

BACK in 1865, John B. Stetson started out to make a felt hat as fine—or finer—than any which the wealthy American gentleman was importing from Europe, and sell it at a price that the average American could pay. Other hatters laughed at him—but the fact that today the John B. Stetson Company is the world's greatest hat making establishment, is testimony to the success of the idea.

The same spirit carries on today. Witness the new fall Stetson—at only $7. No one but Stetson could possibly make so fine a hat at such a price. Every advantage of quality buying, every economy of large scale production, every resource of a huge organization was pressed to the utmost to produce this season's Stetson at a price to meet this season's budgets.

Stetsons at $7—the lowest price in 10 years. Stetsons at $7—the quality as fine as for the past sixty-five years! Come in and see them!

Other Stetsons $7.50—$10 and up

Cubs Lose Ground as Reds Take Third Straight Game, 3 to 2

CARDS BEATEN BY PITTSBURGH; ATHLETICS IDLE

Indians Bow to Browns, 11-3; Tigers Are Winners, 9-3.

By L. S. Cameron, Associated Press Sports Editor.
NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(UP)—Dan Howley and his Cincinnati Reds, long a jinx to the Chicago Cubs, further endangered the Chicago team's hopes of holding third place today when they defeated the Cubs, 3 to 2, in ten innings.

The Reds' victory, their third over the Cubs in two days, cut the Chicagoans' lead over the fourth-place Brooklyn Robins to half a game. The Robins lost an opportunity to tie Chicago by being rained out in their scheduled game against the New York Giants.

Owen Carroll, Detroit castoff, and Clyde Crabbree, rookie outfielder, shared honors in the victory. Carroll held the Cubs to seven scattered hits and pitched shutout ball after the fifth inning. Crabbree tied the score at two-all with a home run off Pat Malone in the seventh and had a hand in the Reds' winning counter in the tenth.

GOOD PITCHING.
Splendid relief pitching by Bob Osborn, a former Cub hurler, gave the Pittsburgh Pirates a 6-to-4 victory over the league-leading St. Louis Cardinals in the only other National league contest of the day. Osborn entered the game in the second after the Cards had pounded Larry French for four runs, and pitched shutout ball for the remainder of the contest, allowing only three hits.

The Pirates got to Burleigh Grimes for two runs on three hits in the second and won the game in the third when they paired four hits, including triples by L. Waner and Thermon, for four runs.

Only two games were scheduled in the American league, with Detroit trouncing the Chicago White Sox, 9 to 3, and St. Louis defeating Cleveland, 11 to 3.

TIGERS OPEN UP.
A six-run attack on Weiland and Garland in the third inning gave Detroit its victory over Chicago, with Arthur Herring allowing the Sox only eight hits and coasting to an easy victory.

Coffman allowed the Indians but nine hits while the 16 hits that his teammates gathered off Brown and Jablonowski made it an easy victory for the Browns.

OFFICIALS MEET FOR DIXIE SERIES PLANS SUNDAY

New Orleans Selected for Meeting; Barons, Buffs To Play.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Southern association and Texas league officials will meet in New Orleans Sunday with representatives of the contending clubs, Birmingham and Houston, to draw up the articles of battle for the southern baseball classic, the Dixie series for the championship of the south.

Announcement of the time and place was made today by Birmingham as pennant winner in the Southern association and Houston winner of both halves of the split season in the Texas league.

Under a standing agreement the series will run until one of the clubs wins four games.

Details to be arranged at Sunday's meeting, which will likely extend into Monday, will include the assignment of dates between Houston and Birmingham, selection of umpires and playing rules.

Each of the circuits will end its season September 13.

John D. Martin will attend the conference as president of the Southern Association, and J. Alvin Gardner as head of the Texas league. Fred Annenman, president of the Houston club, will represent the Texas league entry and W. D. Smith, president of A. H. Woodward, vice president, and W. A. West, business manager, will be on hand to have their say for the Birmingham nine.

Hoover Proclaims Holiday For Yorktown Celebration

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3. (AP)—President Hoover will go to Yorktown, Va., October 19 to deliver an address as part of the celebration of the 50th anniversary of the surrender of Lord Cornwallis.

It will be the first speaking engagement, except for one or two short radio talks, the president has had since he dedicated the Lincoln tomb at Yorktown.

In announcing that he would deliver the Yorktown address, the president made public a proclamation fittingly observed in universities, schools and other suitable places, to the end "that said, "that this momentous event in the history of our nation be commemorated in such a manner as to inspire each generation with devotion to its ideals by recalling to this generation the struggles of the past."

The chief executive is invited to make the address at Yorktown several months ago by the Yorktown Sesqui-centennial committee, a group of prominent state officials.

The Yorktown trip will be the second of President Hoover's in Virginia this year to attend historical celebrations. Last spring he attended exercises at Cape Henry commemorating the landing of the Jamestown colonists.

the spirit of courage and self sacrifice which animated our forefathers." Mr. Hoover also called upon the country to hold appropriate religious ceremonies in the churches of the country Sunday, October 13. "It is fitting," the proclamation

Minister's Plea Saves
Man Who Knifed Him

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—(UP)—Instead of prosecuting the man who, while intoxicated, cut two deep scars in his face, the Rev. George Espin persuaded him to join the Walsh Avenue Methodist Episcopal church.

"He was drunk when he cut me and didn't know what he was doing," continued the minister. Judge Francis Sorrelli dismissed the case and the Rev. Esplin and his new wife will officiate. Interment Greenwood.
